Who thinks "Account Age" or "Trust Scan" should be visible on users posts?

The account age number should be coloured based on how old the account is.

Account Age: 10 Days

Account Age: 111 Days

Account Age: 1000 Days

Trust Scan

I think it would make HF marketplace safer, since some people don't bother using the trust scan feature.

Way too long to fit:

Also account age doesn't define someone's trustworthiness.

There's enough people doing exit scams or scamming newly registered users just to claim they're lying about being scammed.

Also I always click a user's profile in order to see if they're trustworthy, their account age is just a small factor in this.

I check their previous deals and threads. In this case the B-rating should be used.

Could have it saying "Acc Age" or instead put a "Trust Scan" Button which redirects you to that members trust scan page.

I know account age doesn't mean much but it would motivate people to research further on the member they are dealing with.

I think the trust scan button on members posts is a better idea.

It says the user join date when you hover over their profile picture so its basically duplicating data for not much reward.

I like the trust scan idea, not sure if the account age would be necessary.

That.

Trust Scan is for upgraded members only. I'm not going to link it from posts.
