Thread: BUY PRE-MONETIZED YT CHANNELS | START EARNING IMMEDIATELY | YT AUTOMATION

xPlutus - November 10, 2023, 9:14 am

The Exclusive offer is available at a special price of $827.97 $699.97 for the first two purchasers.

Going to keep it short & simple.

I'm opening up my service where I'll be selling my Pre-Monetized Youtube Channels.

A Pre-Monetized YouTube channel is a channel that has reached the threshold that YouTube has required in order to place advertisements on your videos. These requirements are 4000 watchhours & 1000 subscribers.

Opting for this route allows you to bypass the approximately three months it takes to become monetized, saving you both time and a significant amount of money. You'll begin earning as soon as you link your Google AdSense.

Here's the breakdown if you decide not to invest in a Pre-Monetized Channel: Creating 16 videos over 2-3 months, each valued at $40 per video, totals up to $640. Over the span of 3 months, this accumulates to $1920.

A one time payment of $534.97

Pay $827.97 and get a Pre-Monetized Channel + A Tier III copy of my YouTube Automation Masterclass!

Certainly! I personally lean towards using a Middleman (MM) because the process of transferring an account involves several steps, spanning approximately 7 days.

Here's the breakdown:

1. Purchase the channel from me.
2. Generate a NEW Gmail account, and I'll extend an invitation to the channel while granting your email owner permissions.
3. Allow 7-10 days for your account to settle. Once this period concludes, simply remove my account from the channel, and voila, the channel is now officially yours.

Terms of Service (Click to View)

In the event that your channel undergoes demonetization or is blocked within the initial 7 days following your channel reception, and this action is not a result of video strikes or warnings pertaining to videos uploaded within said timeframe, you are entitled to a complimentary replacement. However, if the channel experiences demonetization or blocking due to a failure to adhere to YouTube's Terms of Service, no refunds will be given and you have the option to acquire a new Pre-Monetized channel for $250.

Once the channel transfer is complete, it becomes exclusively yours. I won't be accountable for any actions you take with it.

There are no refunds whatsoever.

I reserve the right to modify these terms at my discretion. Rest assured, I'll promptly update and comment on this thread to keep you informed.

Upon initiating a contract and proceeding through the payment process, you are inherently acknowledging and consenting to abide by these terms.

What kind of channels do you have?

The channels in question are Pre-Monetized thus do not have a niche yet. On average there are 4-5 random videos on there which together garnered the requirements for the YouTube Partner Program.

PS. I currently have 6 channels in stock. Depending on the demand I can & will increase this.

Do you provide tips on what types of videos to make to make money?

The type of videos that can generate a significant amount of money are faceless videos uploaded in an unsaturated niche (low supply, meaning not many videos with high demand, indicating a lot of people actively seeking such content).

These Pre-Monetized Channels are a standalone product, separate from my masterclass. Therefore, I am unable to offer any support or tips after purchase. Whether you decide to take advantage of the exclusive offer or not, I do recommend conducting thorough research on YouTube Automation, niche selection, viewer satisfaction, etc., before diving into YouTube or considering the purchase of a Pre-Monetized Channel.

Hope this answers your question. Any other questions do let me know!

There you go people, saved you some money
Sorry to bust your bubble but you are wrong.

Shorts have an average RPM of $0.05

Long form content has an average RPM of $4.5

1 million shorts views: $1.000.000 / 1000 \times $0.05 = $50$

1 million long form: $1.000.000 / 1000 \times $4.5 = $4.500$

And the tool you're referring to creates heavily saturated reddit story content. Because of this, YouTube does not approve such channels for monetization.

No offenses taken, but please do your research first before making such claims. I'm doing YouTube Automation close to 5 years now, and I stand 100% behind what I say.

Please do check the comments where I share value underneath my YouTube Masterclass thread. Maybe you could learn a thing or two: <https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=6248369>

Ps. The 4000 watchhours I'm referring to on my thread are for long form content, for shorts the requirements are as follows: "Get 1,000 subscribers with 10 million valid public Shorts views in the last 90 days."

Then again these shorts should be unique, not mass AI generated content. This could work for IG or TikTok, I don't know, but not for YouTube. YouTube will simply not allow the channel to the YouTube Partner Program.

The new channel's kicking off strong with one of its initial videos hitting a solid 30k views in less than 24 hours! Plus, it's pre-monetized, and the RPM within this niche clocks in at a cool $4.

So, here's the math breakdown: Video costs amounted to $70. With 27,500 views, it brings in $110. $(27500 / 1000 \times $4)$

That means this video is already turning a profit. It had a one-time investment of $70, and now, it's a profit-making machine!

This channel deals with news, and here's the kicker: if a topic fits the niche, most views pour in within the first 48 hours of upload. This success story is exactly that—a clear indicator to keep making videos on this topic and squeeze every bit of potential out of it.

I agree with xPlutus and I speak from experience here. I've run a Reddit stories channel and they are absolutely hated by YouTube's Partner Program. It's heavily saturated, those who got monetized in it were "first-movers" and even they get into trouble with YT from time to time for these type of videos.
