Thread: Impress a girl with Technology :\)

Hello there.

This is kinda hard to explain, cause I'm new to HF.

You can call me Classwiz. Since I was 5, i began tinkering into computers and learning how they worked.

Sometime between my 7th-8th year of existence I successfully installed Linux Mint on an old laptop, modifying the ISO image so that it skipped the system requirements check.

I got used to Linux pretty quickly, and when i turned 10 I started to develop my own libraries for ARM64 (aarch64) builds.

Now I am a teenager, and I've started to fall in love with a girl...

I was pretty nervous because this generation prefers handsome guys better than good, honest and smart guys.

In fact, I'm not ugly, but I want to impress her another way.

And the question the mods will probably ask themselves is... ¿What does this have to do with this kind of forum?

Well, I want to impress her with my skills. I just don't know how... I was thinking about bruteforcing her iPhone XR and display a message.

Any type of help is appreciated! :)

First of all: you are great.

Don't hack a girl you fancy: that is just cringe.

Hacking is for exposing criminals, not for gettin laid....

Thank you... That's the most awesome thing someone has said to me this week! What about using code? Not in the meaning of hacking, running in my own device?

If that was the most awesome thing someone said to you this week than my quest is fulfilled here I think.

I'm sorry I cannot help with the code bit, I am not an expert.

Although I do I have four sisters so pretty easy for me to "hack" girl's minds (even though I'm gay)....all they want is a guy they can trust. Drop the ones going by looks.

Just realised there was a girl in question.

I hate to tell you most of the time the feeling is not reciprocated.

Such is life. Been there many times. If it hurts just write it out in poems or code or whatever works for you.

Fact: you will find the right one when you least expect.

And it's gonna be so much better than what you feel now.

so true what the user above me says OP...when you meet the right one, the feeling is just different. however, to try to answer your question; just throw her an open cheque like tell her, "WHENEVER she has a computing difficulty, she should hit you up". that should work i think?

Yeah just make a move. Depending how much "access" you have to her.

If you cannot then befriend her mates. Slow approach can work too.

Just think about Leonard in big bang theory.

What girl would be impressed more than creeped out? And no, Apple doesn't allow remotely displaying messages on. iPhones. Or bruteforcing phones. The attack surface is basically nonexistent.
