

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Force change Wifi Channel

Malunaha - December 16, 2023, 3:14 pm

Would it be theoretically possible to force the router I am connected to (5Ghz) to change the wifi channel. Without admin rights.

Charlie Sheen - December 16, 2023, 3:22 pm

No, you need to be able to get into the settings page of the router. If you can find the router, there's a chance it's on the bottom sticker of it. Most people don't change the password.

pasnger57 - December 16, 2023, 3:24 pm

(Dec 16, 2023 04:14 PM)Malunaha Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Would it be theoretically possible to force the router I am connected to (5Ghz) to change the wifi channel. Without admin rights.

Depending on its automatic settings it may use 2.4 and 5Gh for connectivity but if you (however this all only if the clients that is set to accept any/or/only conditions off a ssid some radios have 2.4 some are a mix and if the Broadcast is in Both or if it is only one 2.4 or 5Ghz points is interference will let the device change channel if need unless set to a fix ch

Malunaha - December 17, 2023, 9:05 am

Is it possible to jam a whole Wifi channel?

The router has "Auto Channel On" activated. Can I make the channel so unattractive that it changes by jamming ?

DramaKing - December 17, 2023, 6:25 pm

(Dec 17, 2023 10:05 AM)Malunaha Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Is it possible to jam a whole Wifi channel?

The router has "Auto Channel On" activated. Can I make the channel so unattractive that it changes by jamming ?

Signal jammer are illegal in many countries. Theoretically, enough deauth messages against an AP will cause it to change channel.

pasnger57 - December 18, 2023, 3:01 pm

(Dec 17, 2023 10:05 AM)Malunaha Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Is it possible to jam a whole Wifi channel?

The router has "Auto Channel On" activated. Can I make the channel so unattractive that it changes by jamming ?

I would recommend agents That (but if you have a few extra Routers laying around your Could set em up to broadcast on the channel in question and make it too busy to use ...

luddite - December 19, 2023, 3:13 pm

MDK4 can do beacon floods, client floods, cts floods and fragging. one of those should do it.