Is there any way to make money to support our family as quickly as possible safely and stably?

Thank you for your advice.

prostitution is always an option, right?

I mean, if there was a certain way of making money that would always work... Everybody would do it...

Nothing is safe, nothing is stable.

Without expertise it is even harder to find something that will get you money.

There are just too many people at that same entry level that will do riskier things for less money than you are willing to.

So yeah, life is tough...

you can run some ransomware, carding... there are a few options.. none of them is free of risk though...

at least they are fun...

cyber crime risk has more to do with the country you live (+ were born) and the country your targets are based than anything else...

for example, for those living in US, I believe it is a high risk to commit any crime actually... criminal justice in US is completely out of proportion...

in many countries the criminal justice is very, very lazy when we are talking about cyber crime...

the kid from lapsus who is now facing life in a hospital... he is only facing that penalty because he is from UK... if he was from some LATAM country... he would not even have been arrested...

these are some things to consider...

Prolific and Cloud Research are good options to make around $20 per day if that helps. It's easier to get approved if you are in the US. Check the /r/beermoney Reddit for some extra ways to make a few dollars.

Honestly, I can't think of any whitehat overnight methods. The closest you will get is a paycheck advance, loan, or charity donation, but the only way you can get those same-day is if you are qualified. Usually you'll need proof of employment, direct deposit banking history, etc. For the charity angle, it can take days, weeks, months to vet recipients. I don't mean to be pessimistic, it's just hard to get anything quickly

Hey buddy,

First of all I want to give you some props for trying to support your family especially if you are in a tough situation. It's tough out there. Not sure why some people are so hostile while giving dogsh*t advice.

Let's talk about long term stability. If you want to build long term wealth it takes time. You need some sort of skills either to

1. Provide some sort of service
2. Create a product which can be automated and all you have to do is maintain and gather customers.

The quickest way is to get a job as it can give you money every month or week. That will put you in a secure spot, and then you can read some books like

- Think and grow rich
- The lean startup
- Rich dad poor dad
- One million followers

Or any books that teach you basics of the field you are interested in. I can lose all my money and still build it again because I have years of experience as a Software engineer and I can build many Apps or get hired easily.

Experience and skills are very undervalued by average people, if you are best at what you do money will flow.

Maybe you can tell us what skills you have or what are you good at. If not it's a good time to pickup some courses from Udemy (warez disallowed) or YouTube and start practicing.

Last year I started building an App with few customers which pay me every month through subscription. It grows every month. Next year i plan on building another app which will do the same. I also plan on marketing it on social media where my followers are increasing.

As you see I did not build just one source of income but multiple sources but not all at once. Just one by one over time, rewards of which compound overtime.

Goodluck to you and DM me if you have any questions or need help.
