Thread: Someone just sent 27 BTC to Satoshi Nakamoto's wallet

Riggs - January 6, 2024, 8:22 am

Looks like it came from a Binance wallet.

Well, some people burn money. I guess this is a similar 'flex'

GruntStyl - January 6, 2024, 9:40 am

Why would someone do this? Is there any benefit at all? I don't think you can write something like this off as a loss even if you were very wealthy?

Biggs - January 6, 2024, 9:48 am

Maybe he has tons of them and want to thank Satoshi for them, or maybe he's just braindead and wants to lose a million. We'll never know.

Maskin - January 6, 2024, 10:47 am

Maybe satoshi will return 27th of january, or in 2027.

Lucid - January 6, 2024, 10:59 am

A true crypto mystery. Curious if any developments come from this or whatever.

either dirty funds/insanely rich person doing it as marketing before etf/guy who lost everything burning his remaining funds

i remember earlier this year someone on twitter supposedly blew up most of their account, and sent

$5m worth of ETH to a burn address and (supposedly, no actual proof) committed suicide

Eran - January 6, 2024, 11:06 am

Love threads like these where someone just burns crypto lmao.

Riggs - January 6, 2024, 11:33 am

I suspect someone with more money than sense was probably following an online tutorial on how to transfer crypto into cold storage and ended up using the gen1 wallet example placeholder.

I'm Stanley HF's helper bot. The OP (original poster) of this thread wants everyone to see this page and has elected to bump it to the top of the showthread listing. Since HF doesn't want a ton of LQP (Low Quality Posts) this is the best method of bumping your content. There is a small ?yte fee for each bump. Any OP can bump any of their threads on HF from the linked icon on the top of their first post.

If you haven't already read the first post of this thread we encourage you to do so.

Thanks,

You should probably learn what a write off actually is from somewhere other than tiktok. You are never at an advantage of dumping money down the toilet.

SUI-3183372 - January 6, 2024, 12:33 pm

Probably just Satoshi moving some funds to cold storage. ?

Being in business for almost 9 years now, I'm well aware what a tax write off is. It never ceases to amaze me how quickly some people on here are to jump and try to be-little someone lol. It's as if they feel superior in some odd way. Anyways, I obviously didn't mean it in the sense that he had some random 'receipt' and decided he was going to try writing off his BTC transfer.. It was a question posed to some other possible underlying reason why he would have wanted to transfer a large amount of money like that. Like money laundering, dirty money, etc. For some type of advantage. I feel that's much more likely than just sending it for no reason.

Part of me had that thought in the back of my head as well, maybe he did it just to stir people up online. lmao

It's quite a plausible explanation. Imagine you had $1m+ in crypto and wanted sole custody of it, but didn't trust anyone technically competent to help you facilitate that transfer so decided you would try yourself. Crypto is hard and people are pretty stupid.

Then I don't have any idea why you think it would be a good idea to "get a write off" for dumping some BTC down the toilet. Questioning if this is for a write off heavily implies you did not understand what a write off is or does. Perhaps that isn't what you meant to ask.

Or it was just to stir up the internet in hopes for a news post of some sort. Who knows.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE: @TAPROOTWIZARDS SENDS 26.9 BTC TO SATOSHI NAKAMOTO TO FORCE HER TO FILE WITH THE IRS

January 7th, 2026 - Taproot Wizards CWO Udi Wertheimer today announced that a 26.9 BTC transaction to Satoshi Nakamoto's original Bitcoin address which was first used in Bitcoin's genesis address — a total of $1.2 million USD in today's price — was made from the Taproot Wizards treasury.

The goal of the payment is to force Satoshi to reveal her identity, by triggering the new cash payment rule, which requires Americans to report any cryptocurrency payment they receive above $10,000.

"We have strong evidence that — as many have suspected — US Senator Elizabeth Warren is indeed the mysterious creator of Bitcoin known as Satoshi Nakamoto. She will now have to publicly disclose that fact", says Udi. "That disclosure would wreak havoc in the bitcoin community, and would lend us the cover necessary to fork bitcoin, as we promised our investors in the ETH cabal and the IMF".

A spokesperson for Taproot Wizards clarified that the transaction size was intended as 0.269 BTC - $12,000 USD - but the intern mislicked and was swiftly fired. Interested employers may reach out to @dazza9x with job offers.

Omniscient - January 8, 2024, 12:11 pm

So basically a dumb-ass publicity stunt.

"The goal of the payment is to force Satoshi to reveal her identity"

The chances that Satoshi is a women is about 0% imho. But sure, do some publicity stunt along with virtue signaling.

Reading it again, all seems like an Onion release. Doubting it was even them who sent the 27 BTC. Something to get free attention by making the claim it was them. Not really believing it.

The genesis wallet is part of the Genesis Block which is the first block from Bitcoin's block chain. So, yes, it's one of the first few addresses.

I remember reading that it could've been someone/company that owed CSW money (nchain possibly) and since he's claiming to be Satoshi, they sent it to his wallet ?

That being said, who knows.

I know Craig Wright has a history of taking out defamation claims against his critics, so this would be hilarious if true. However, I think the terms of any settlements require compensation to be paid via a claimant specified and court agreed method.

Yeah he tried to sue hodlnaut or whatever, imagine the supposed "satoshi" claiming that having private keys doesn't prove ownership, the irony is unfathomable.

Would definitely be hilarious if true.

Marvelous - January 8, 2024, 5:57 pm

Definitely interesting. Could it be the CIA that sent it to the wrong one of their BTC addresses? Since they are Satoshi and own 1,000,000 BTC. They are waiting for it to be the global reserve currency then disclose they made it and own a million coins.

What a plot twist this would end up being lmao. I never thought of that being a possibility. Although it sounds like that is probably been one of the ideas of who it actually is for years now.

Emoticon - January 8, 2024, 11:55 pm

perhaps someone who made a life's worth off cryptocurrency who's simply "pouring one out" for the long-lost creator of what brought them the technology that made them.

So you are comparing the possibility of the NSA/CIA making BTC.. to a time traveler? Lmfao.

Facts:

Nobody knows who Satoshi is..

Satoshi owns 5% of all BTC that will ever exist.

The USD hyper inflated and sanctioned to half the world.. more and more countries are leaving the USD. They are lying about it until it becomes a global world reserve currency, then they come out and have 5% of the coins for them selves.

Just because you don't want to hear it doesn't mean it isn't worth a thought.

I don't understand the relevance? I am talking how an unknown entity owns 5% of the current supply of BTC and somehow ETH gets brought up?

Vitalik currently owns 250k which is .2% of circulating supply. We know who he is..

But yes, typically response from the bigger BOT than Stanley. Deflecting to compare BTC to ETH. Maximalist mentality is toxic.
