Buy a pressure washer, find grimy ass concrete walls around your area, pressure wash your phone # and your rate into said grimy wall. You'll make more money that way than anything you could ever find on this forum, unless you learn to become a legit software developer and start creating valuable software.

Just look at threads with High amount of Replies/Vouches on HF and other forums. Copy their products and read feedback on their threads. Add the improvements they are too lazy to add and thats how you steal customers/grow a product.

The profit isn't really based on the service provided. It's based on the skill of the provider. Just saying that you should make money from something you're good at.

You make the most money if you can find a hole in the market for something that isn't "there" yet.

Selling common products will just saturate the market more and your earnings would be less than selling something that nobody else is selling but is popular.

There is demand for everything you posted. Just do it well, market it well, and keep your reputation good.
