

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Safety razors vs disposable 3 blade razors?

hit - January 13, 2024, 4:11 am

I recently switched to using a safety razor with some quality blades. I researched it for a while and most people swore by it. I went on Amazon and picked up a basic handle and some quality blades. Ironically, from the first shave it was a far better experience. It's a billion times cheaper also. 8 bucks for 100 blades that last like 10 shaves. I had no learning curve issue either. I'll never go back. Anyone else make the plunge and change to using a real razor vs disposable? How was your experience?

Komodo - January 13, 2024, 10:39 am

Look up an angled safety blade like the leaf blade.

Mine is angled like its counterpart 5 blade razors and it only takes half a blade instead of a whole blade. Makes the blades last 2x longer and it's more comfortable and easier to use, been using it for years now.

M?tt - January 13, 2024, 11:12 am

Do you shave daily? I've considered it for sure.

Monero-chan - January 13, 2024, 11:40 pm

I'll only trim, I want to keep mine.

The only time I do shave though is when I'm trying to make my dick look bigger ya feel?

Eran - January 14, 2024, 2:58 am

Mostly use disposable razors tbh.

Jamika - January 14, 2024, 4:14 am

I usually buy the disposable one, i will not keep using one for a year

hit - January 14, 2024, 6:25 am

(Jan 13, 2024 11:39 AM)Komodo Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Look up an angled safety blade like the leaf blade.

Mine is angled like its counterpart 5 blade razors and it only takes half a blade instead of a whole blade. Makes the blades last 2x longer and it's more comfortable and easier to use, been using it for years now.

This is exactly what i got. After using it I felt like the biggest dumbass using the old disposable razors and the cost is literally pennies vs dollars.