What are some everyday sites/tasks I can do to make some quick small side money?

First of all, what skills do you have?

You could create websites for other people.
Design graphics, sell things in online stores.
You can Farm Gold in World of Warcraft and sell it (i dont know it is still works but i think someone will pay)

Participate in paid surveys.
There are 1000 lists, everything is possible.
Many things are often presented better than they are,
You should be aware that everything involves effort. You have to do something for it. Maybe you have to learn something for some things

What kind of jobs are you willing to do?
What do you want to do and what are your interests?

Is there something that is only available in your city that you can sell online?

With all things, you have to find customers or something similar. Or you invest in advertising, but then you should know how to set them correctly, the right keywords and you have to invest money first, if the advertising campaign goes wrong you have lost money that is associated with a risk.

I think the quickest and easiest way is still to ask in local restaurants if they need help, maybe even in the black and pay you directly after the day.

Amazing response! So yes, I am great at making websites but cannot find any clients.

Advice on this?

Yes, the first thing you should do is create a page on which you market yourself.

- Write offers on our page
- Your skills and experience
- If you have already created some, link them to show customers what you can do.
- If you don't have any references, create a few sample pages with different designs
- Talk to people in your area, for example, use google to find restaurants, hairdressers and so on. if they already have a website maybe you can sell them a better one.
- Tell friends and relatives about your service, be open and tell them that you are looking for customers, that you need money then they will think of you when they talk to others and the subject of the website may come up and tell them about you and pass on your contact.

you can also offer extra services such as ssl certificates, logos menus or price lists

You should optimize your own website for SEO so that it can be found and ranked well on google.

Also post your offer on public online marketplaces, on quoka or similar. Contact people via social media and convince them that they need a website and explain to them how this will generate more customers and therefore sales.

I hope this has been useful information for you
