?? You need to steal the logged in phone to hijack a WhatsApp account.

yes because I could use the numbers present in the WhatsApp channel db and not the group where they are not visible but a channel is different there are people in there and a lot of them.

well i mean, yeah the clear way is to hijack the person's phone and then log in with their whatsapp scanner on an alternative device. However, i suspect whatsapp will soon integrate a IP login location requirement, so it wont be working for that long. I have come across a few other things that had potential to hack whatsapp but the interface is hard to manage.

I don't think there is another way beside having the person's phone physically to scan the barcode
