Thread: OSRS vs RS3

Charlie Sheen - February 9, 2024, 7:41 am

I have played RuneScape forever, I have taken massive breaks from time to time and somehow I always get the itch to get back into RuneScape. I made the switch to RS3 when it came out because I didn't want to start over and I was just getting back into RuneScape so I was not down for another insane grind. In the last month I made the switch over to Old School RuneScape and while it's been a grind I've actually enjoyed it a lot. A lot of nostalgia playing these quests again and whatnot.

But here's the question, if you play RuneScape. Which is better. OSRS or RS3?

Also shout out to Pink LSZ Clan, if you play and are looking for a awesome clan to get into for socializing, group events, giveaways, they are the best. Hit up [mention=3707989] for an invite.

I prefer OSRS. I do hop on RS3 and do my protein logs and dailys but I don't actually play outside of that.

Seaking - February 9, 2024, 1:57 pm

OSRS all the way. When I start to play RS3 I start thinking to myself "Why am I playing this when I could be playing ____", but I never feel like that on old school.

Walt Disney™ - February 9, 2024, 2:03 pm

I still play OSRS all the time.

Made the switch to an Ironman and it made the game much more enjoyable.

Tried out RS3 and it's just jam packed with a decade of updates that kill off other content that used to be viable and fun.

Yin Yang - February 9, 2024, 2:15 pm

I never got into RS3, so my vote is a bit biased but OSRS for sure

Jamika - February 10, 2024, 8:45 am

I played both for about 2 days, but osrs are way amusing and better than runescape

SysAdmin - February 10, 2024, 12:47 pm

I've played a bit of both back in the day and about a year ago I've decided to restart OSRS, this time with an Ironman account. I've played a bunch and even got to 99 Firemaking on the account, I absolutely love the thrill of having to get your own items and grind for them before being able to continue with quests etc..

I've recently had my membership expire so I haven't played in about two months, but you never really quit OSRS now do you..

KADAI FLOG - February 10, 2024, 3:12 pm

I prefer OSRS i played long time ago

HALx86 - February 10, 2024, 6:36 pm

RS3's push on micro purchases really threw me off. I'd probably still be playing if it wasn't for that.

Kosmos - February 11, 2024, 10:19 pm

I only play RS3, mainly because it's where I have the most progress. Working on 200M all. I hop onto OSRS every so often though.

DemonAsylum - February 16, 2024, 1:55 am

OSRS without a shadow of a doubt. RS3 has never interested me in the slightest and I'm confident never will.

Pancake Boat - February 16, 2024, 2:56 am

Got back into OSRS 2 weeks ago. Love how the game just pulls you in.

Now all of my search history and youtube recommended videos are RS based.

When the universe feels you've been away from it long enough, somehow, someway, you'll get sucked back in.

I have a maxed RS3 account because i thought RS3 was better. Now i'm exclusively playing on my OSRS Ironman.

They fucked up RS3 to much these days.

Yeah there's some qualities of RS3 that I prefer. But for the most part I think I prefer OSRS now. That's a big jump for you to make going from the ease of RS3 to ironman on old school.

Friend got me hooked on it. Always felt like i missed 90% of the game when you can buy everything on the GE and quest instantly.

Yeah I haven't attempted an Ironman but I have thought about it. But I couldn't imagine having to hunt down all the supplies for a quest. Also I couldn't imagine the only way I'd be able to get a certain sword or set of armor is to go boss until I got that drop.

The drops are way later in the game. Shouldn't worry about it in the beginning. Ironman.guide is really helping me with the begin. It tells you what to pick up and what quests to start so you're very efficient in the beginning. Some things are a grind for no reason tho with ironmans. But everything makes way more sense when you play as an ironman.

It just feels weird to me that there are "buyable" skills. Now you're woodcutting for FM. Fishing for cooking etc.

I would agree with this. If you enjoy HF and you enjoy OSRS, being in Pinks OSRS clan basically feels like Runescape did when you were growing up. They host events, the CC is active, there are always people online no matter the timezone. They offer a ton of support in the Discord for new or returning players. It's honestly a ton of fun to be a part of.

I haven't been active on there cause new work schedule is buttkiss.

While I'm not an Ironman. I try to be Ironman-like. Like to train firemaking or fletching I chop my own logs. There are times for a quest or something that I need a certain level and I buy the skill quickly. Not so much anymore since I have completed 144 of 159 quests.

I believe OSRS is better. RS3 if viewed as a completely different game can be fun. There's a lot more AFK gameplay which I find enjoyable.

I made the jump from RS3 to OSRS and I have to say it's really breathed new life into my love of the game. I was getting so bored of RS3 and some of it's nonsense. I do think there are some really great qualities of RS3 but I haven't had the slightest desire to sign on and play RS3 since I switched to OSRS.

I'm maxed on RuneScape 3, I just started playing Old School about a month ago. I've really been enjoying it. I still have a ways to go before I max in OSRS though, I don't know if I'll ever be able to with as slow as some of these skills can be. I've been focusing on trying to get every quest completed. I have 13 left, I had to take a break while I train up my combat for some of these quest bosses.

Dirty - February 22, 2024, 2:20 am

Over the last 20 ish years I have been playing runescape on and off. I have a maxed RS3 account (before divination and some other skills) and a maxed osrs account. Now when taking breaks from work and other things I have been playing an ironman. Although I have no real plan of maxing this one, I have been enjoying it a lot and it's a really fun gamemode. Overall I enjoy osrs way more than rs3

Definitely would pick OSRS over RS3. I have about 6B on 07, but just work so much that I never have time to play. Unfortunately I sold my twisted bow back in August of 2023, and all the end game gear had been sky rocketing over the last months.

It's a lot of fun, especially if you know the game quite a bit. It really pushes it even more. Its not for everyone but its perfect for me, cause if I play my main I just play gpscape and feel like doing anything but max gp/hr is wasting time, so this is alot easier on my head

I think there's a version of Ironman that doesn't get bank access. That would be absolutely insane. I don't know how anyone could do it. I think it's called Ultimate Ironman. I would lose my mind attempting that one lol.

Did he end up maxing there? There's probably a handful of skills that he wouldn't be able to train there. Those people take it way too far. But then again I get it, they have probably maxed their mains, then made all kinds of alts and now they need something new to keep playing the game.

Ah man he must've spent forever working on that. I did see an interesting scam the other day were people store a bunch of lamps then they would stake on level 3's and at the beginning of the fight use all the lamps. A lot of people don't know this but this new company that "oWnS" Jagex, doesn't actually own Jagex. Jagex does this about every 3 years and it's basically a lease to investors so they get a majority of the games profits with the buy in to Jagex. While on paper they own Jagex, while to market they own Jagex, Jagex actually does this every few years with a new investor for the sake of milking more money. You would think that 1.5b USD$ a year would be enough for people to be like, "I can work for this", people are actually so pathetic and greedy that they feel like they need more money for a fucking 240 pixel fucking game.

Oldschool Runescape for me!

I used to play it since 2004 and quit when EOC launched, started playing again in 2015.

I am probably going to offer services on here which are OSRS related to maybe make some small side-money.

Radi - March 21, 2024, 9:05 am

Listen from my standpoint i get on rs3 more than on OSRS but i still play both, its just that there is more to do in RS3 and the graphics are better. The nostalgia is great and all but after a while you get annoyed so with them releasing a new client with updated graphics for OSRS and the new skill soon I might play more OSRS.

Kalvaxas - March 21, 2024, 9:10 am

Having never played RS back in the day, I definitely enjoy RuneScape 3. The gameplay is much smoother and the graphics are so much better. Since there's no nostalgia in it for me, OSRS would only be fun when playing with other friends. There are graphical improvement mods on RuneLite, but they still pale in comparison to RS3.

So, essentially, anyone that has played RuneScape before will more than likely choose OSRS for nostalgia. Anyone who hasn't will probably choose RuneScape 3 because it looks better.

Instantly walked away as soon as it swapped to RS3 and never looked back. Fuck all of that lmao.
OSRS forever 100%

OOOO bet I understand what you meant now. Yeah I still hop on here and there. Been a bit since I've been like full on back into it though. The itch has been coming back recently however so maybe..

I've been playing Runecape for well over a decade now. I've experienced many changes over the years, as well as witnessing many scams or exploits take place. As RuneScape was transitioning into what is now RS3, I welcomed the change at the time. It was nice to see the game once again evolving.

The new combat system took some time getting used to, and felt a little overwhelming at first, but I adapted. Bossing became much more difficult too, and learning the strategy's took some time as well. Overall, I was enjoying it. Especially since a plethora of content was being released.

Unfortunately, Jagex began implementing features I was not a fan of. RS3 started turning into a pay to win game. I think that's what ultimately ruined it for me. However, starting over on OSRS and reliving my childhood again, I'd say that solidified it for me.

I didn't realize how much had changed, the comparison between the two is like night and day. The feeling of nostalgia rushed in, and once again I was addicted. I think OSRS is much more engaging, as well as rewarding. I love the simplicity of the game, overall. Something that never needed to be changed.

OSRS is unmatched and RS3 doesn't hold a candle to it imo. Sure you can say however much of it is bias due to growing up playing it, but I too just think RS3 is a bit too much, has some P2W aspects, and strayed too far from what RS always was prior to that. That isn't to say I don't understand some of why they did what they did. I just don't prefer or agree with it all.

I've not played much games recently as I've been too focused on the gym and football but got the itch. I'll probably jump on later tonight!

[mention=3707989] can I get an invite to the Pink clan later?

I still gotta get back into it as well. Waiting to see how this Diablo 4 update is looking next week and then I'll go from there I guess.

Which Diablo did you play? 3, D2R and most recently 4 have been on there. It definitely can be a grind though haha. Just how those kinds of games are. You either like that kind of grind or you don't.

I played a little Diablo 3 AGESSSS ago. Played Diablo 4 when it came to the game pass. Only up till about lvl 30 and now a bit bored.

I loved Diablo 3, I haven't tried Diablo 4 yet. Surprisingly, the graphics put me off trying it. There's a certain charm about the graphics on D3

Ah yeah I feel it. Can definitely be grindy and in turn boring for some. I've been away from it for a bit too, but a lot of the changes in this next update for the new season look promising. We shall see.

I dont think you can compare the two anymore Rs3 looks like a completely different game but im osrs biased

Grim - June 20, 2024, 7:52 am

i wanna get back into RS3 or OSRS been having the itch recently

You should play RS3 first, just to give things a try again. Then go to OSRS if it isn't your thing. I've been hooked on RS3, going for 200M xp in all skills...almost halfway there, lmao.

Same for me, but with OSRS only haha. Never messed with RS3. I'll end up back into OSRS in the next month or 2 probably.

You never truly quit RS brotha! You simply take breaks is all haha.

I-I - June 28, 2024, 8:33 pm

RS3 was shit before it was even called RS3. My IRL buddy swears it's good but I've never been able to get into it and he refuses to play OSRS

Yokobovich - June 29, 2024, 11:35 am

OSRS for me. I just wish i had more time to play.

That's one of the great things about OSRS though is you can kind of just do whatever all you want to and at your own pace. I get you though. Especially if you have a lot of fun with it, you're naturally going to want to have more time to do more, progress faster, etc. I'll always love OSRS whether I'm actively playing or not. I always come back.
