I'll throw my hat in the ring, so to speak! I'm always looking to network more, and have always had good interactions with you guys (as far as I'm aware!). I'm always trying to learn more, expand my skill sets, and do what I can to make money while helping friends and family earn along the way too.

I'm a graphic designer, marketer and do most things visual including video editing or full scale production too. I just want to do more, be involved in more and contribute to group projects, hopefully to build something big that will outlast me or help make life easier for my family. Hobbies wise, I've posted on HF about it before, but I love gardening and woodworking, always trying to create new things, and I spend a lot of free time making things for my wife or going out and exploring with her. I'm curious about all things, like my username suggests, and will always try to go out of my way for others where I can. I know I may not be picked and there'll be plenty of others with great applications, but thank you for reading and considering me!

Hey there. I prefer to keep a low profile on the world wide web, so I'm not very comfortable sharing personal details in a public reply. Can I send you a private message instead? I'd like to join your group though.

Thanks

Hello hello, didn't expect to see this.

I'm a night shift Doc working in an ER. I work either my main job at the hospital or I pick up moonlighting shifts at other hospitals.

Huge advocator for working out and men's mental health. I've made a bunch of workout and medical threads on this forum, they're hit or miss with popularity but I like them.

based? - February 14, 2024, 5:19 pm

Hello,

My name is based, I'm 24 years old and come from Denmark.

I completed the education IT-Supporter and now I study Computer Science. I've also been at uni studying maths and been an automechanic (Didn't finish)

As a person, I'm helpful, loyal and friendly. I will not keep my mouth closed if I disagree and always give my honest opinion.

I've had a "near death" experience in 2018 and after that I live by "treat others how you want to be treated" - so I'm trying to be a good person. (Of course you can't always, but I try to be)

As for my hobbies I love to work on my own coding projects and workout at the gym. Currently I'm working on a bigger project which includes an angular frontend and a GO restful API with a study friend.

My friend also has a big lua script for a CS:GO cheat which I help develop (website and his script)

Recently I came back to hackforums, therefore my activity isn't that high at the moment. I guarantee it will come back up.

Best of luck to those who apply!

EDIT: While writing this, I accidentally spilled lasagne on my white versace shirt.... can't get the stain off (I cry)

M?tt - February 14, 2024, 6:04 pm

Infamous has been (or is) the longest lasting group on HF and while seeing multiple different owners and iterations of it, it's a very well known group and consists of only the highest quality members.

About Me: My name is obviously Matt and I've been here for 14 years. Throughout my time here, I've upheld a perfect reputation with no negs and no market disputes against me. While I don't sell a lot of things here, I have never and don't intend on scamming the community. There has never been an exit scam thought that ever crossed my mind because despite the relatively minimal activity I have here, I deeply care about this community. I have taken a relatively long break due to work and school but I have found some time at night to dedicate to the forum. With the countless new threads of members wanting to learn how to hack, I feel that it's my opportunity to share my experience as I am also currently in that process. I am pursuing my Masters degree in Information Security Engineering and hope to graduate and share my experiences, knowledge, and future projects with the forum.

Qualifications: Nothing really to note here, but I have numerous certifications and am constantly looking for ways to stay educated in Cybersecurity. I feel like there is a lot of misinformation on how members can start their journey or are convinced that buying all these tools will make them great hackers, but I have learned over countless mistakes that understanding the tools and how to properly use them comes first.

Why Me: High quality posts at all times. I'm always providing a response with a well thought out response and when helping another member with the questions they're asking, I seek out supporting documentation (whether it be in the form of another thread or outside source). I also take criticism well without needing to fluff my ego, someone else's, or make excuses. I am human like everyone else here and if I'm wrong, I'm wrong and own it. If I'm right, I look for ways to see the other side of things if being considered wrong and can have an open-minded discussion without getting offended or defensive about the topic at hand.

Conclusion: I have a lot of miles and posts (despite most deleted now) here and have a vast amount of experience here. Infamous needs members with wisdom, experience, and reputation amongst others. While I may not have the reputation here due to my lack of activity, I definitely have experience and wisdom. I only plan to provide the most friendly and professional image while here on the forums and intend to keep it that way, regardless of being selected. Thank you for your consideration and best of luck to all members that apply!

jcole - February 18, 2024, 12:14 pm

Thank you to the leadership of Infamous for allowing the member base to take the time to write an introductory application.

My name's Jeremy, and everyone knows me by jcole on the forum. I had an account on Hackforums in 2012, but never really understood the forum atmosphere and was not active. My account got purged like many others, but as I got older I always remembered Hackforums as a community as well as the potential friendships and bonds that can be made on a place like this. Since I've come back to Hackforums I have struggled with and overcome addiction. I've had highs and lows throughout my time, but have always done what I think is right by having good morale and integrity while being a member that new and old users can turn towards if they needed someone.

I turned twenty seven this year. I am not as old as some of the more reputable veterans on here, but I still like to observe, interact, and learn from others on certain topics. I have come across lots of people in the past years on this forum who I have the utmost respect for. I'm not active on any other online forums solely because I have a lot of attachment to this forum, and the user base that it has attracted through the time it has been online.

Currently I work for a infrastructure company and average around 55-60 hours weekly which keeps me fairly busy, but not so busy that I am not able to get on Hackforums at least once a day. I don't sell anything on this forum often, but I have started a crypto exchanging thread you can see here. I've exchanged over $20,000 USD since I began the thread and pride myself in staying quick, honest, and reliable for the members that require my services. I hope to have exchanged $100,000 USD by the end of this year and aim to have a 1000 B-rating with Booyahs.

My current hobbies include spending time with family, riding motorcycles, and playing video games on my PC. I keep my friendship circle very small although I know a lot of people in the current city I live in, and many others in different cities throughout my state. I play a lot of League of Legends and have put thousands of hours into the game over the last decade trying to play how the professional gamers play. I don't believe I'll ever be at the professional level, but it is nice to strive and aspire to be better in anything that you do. I recently have started to travel more, and have an interest in learning other's cultures and values. Most of the time my traveling will be work related, but on my off days I like to spend time at museums and historical sites. Lately I've been spending time reading about crypto currency and looking for the next big thing to invest in. I have a lot to learn, but others are much more knowledgeable than me and it is intriguing to read about and gain an understanding of the current market and ambience of the crypto world. If I am accepted into this prestigious group, I would like to participate in giveaways, be apart of events that are hosted throughout the community, and be a good example towards the newer and older members of the community. Best of luck to other members who intend on applying!

This is a familiar attitude... You haven't contributed to the forum in a bit and you're basically expecting an invite because you have money. Lots of people have money. It sounds like the OP was looking for something interesting in each application.

Unless you're sitting on millions of dollars I don't think you should be laughing and calling people "bruv", bruv - and even then, usually the more money you make the less you talk about it, and the newer some extra cash is, the richer you may say you are. This is proven time and time again, at least in my life from seeing how people of different wealth classes speak.

Based on how you write, I call shenanigans on how bored of having too much money you really are.

I recently have started to travel more, and have an interest in learning other's cultures and values. Most of the time my traveling will be work related, but on my off days I like to spend time at museums and historical sites. Lately I've been spending time reading about crypto currency and looking for the next big thing to invest in. I have a lot to learn, but others are much more knowledgeable than me and it is intriguing to read about and gain an understanding of the current market and ambience of the crypto world. If I am accepted into this prestigious group, I would like to participate in giveaways, be apart of events that are hosted throughout the community, and be a good example towards the newer and older members of the community. Best of luck to other members who intend on applying!

Going to also agree with countless others here that jcole deserves this spot. My application doesn't hold a candle to his time and dedication to the community. Best of luck man!

waaaaaaaay to much money to be dealing with this nonsense

Trip05 - February 20, 2024, 6:09 am

Why not? My life could be giving more.

I would like to apply for this position in the group.

I have been in this space for many years my profile has been active since 2012. Not much has been contributed and I feel like I could provide more.

I have a deep understanding of cyber security currently studying mock exams for the PT0-002 Pentest + which I have bought my exam ticket for. Currently getting around 75% off the bat which ain't bad I don't think.

I have been around in cyberspace for a while around 20 years ago I started playing around with botnets/rats/encryption learning how tools work such as blackshades,dark comet and other rats & how to encrypt the binaries to pass AV systems. Which led me down the path I have taken today I have a much broader understanding of many systems now I use Linux primarily. I have done reverse engineering for malware looking for signatures to identify and how to mitigate against detections.

I have been fairly "Grey" during the experience not so much malicious blackhat activities. I prefer to help people. I want to be apart of a group which is doing this so I can also gain more knowledge and a deeper understanding of a wide range of problems whilst doing some good.

My Hobbies would be Gaming, 3D Printing, Coding in Python and other object orientated languages to create bots and other things for fun.

Currently I am learning Image recognition such as "YOLO" so I can apply this to bot creation.

What kind of group activities would be happening if I were to be accepted into this group?

What benefits and disadvantages would be if I were to join?

This sounds like it could be right up my alley.

Kind Regards

Incredible post by JCole but I'll throw my hat in the ring as well even though this is probably above my pay grade. I've been a member of HF for a few years now and been looking for a group to join that's active so would love to part of Infamous. I'm pretty much active every day reading a lot of the threads around the forum and contributing when I can. I've also had successful business exchanges with many members on here. IT Support has been my line of work but also have a deep interest in Cyber security especially relating to how malware is created and deployed. In my spare time I love to play around with AI software and video game when I can. Thanks for considering my application and good look to everyone else as well.

Hey.. been a while since i'm around, i took a break for a couple year, i'm actually building up my setup back to be more efficient.

I'm applying for the group opened spot.

I don't know, what you guys are planning on to, or simply having a nice group of great user.

In that case, i'm ready to be more active on the forums side, more discuss and sharing around.

I'm a user, that just started to discuss and sharing on stuff, i use to simply, read, learn, work on stuff that we can found in here.

I will definitely stay quite on my activity described has "Hacking", after more then 10year in here, and Deeper, i got some stuff in my toolbox that are probly interesting, but actually can tell, i can help, share and give my opinion and point of view on stuff.

Have a nice day, Thanks

Kalvaxas - March 2, 2024, 9:01 pm

First off, thank you for the opportunity to possibly join Infamous!

My name is Mike, though I go by Sasuke here on HF. I would classify myself as a dreamer. I have so many great ideas. So many ways thought up on how I could get myself into what I consider to be a successful state of life. Most of the time, my time is spent learning new things both mentally and physically. I have ADHD, so quick learning is more my style. Maybe I'll take a few minutes or a few hours to learn something (All while doing 50 million things in-between the learning process).

Right now, I'm currently going through a web development course on Udemy (warez disallowed), and I'm thoroughly enjoying it. For the longest time, I've wanted to become a software engineer. I've put so much time into that. The truth is I could just never get into it the way that I wanted to. So, I took long breaks in between. Lost that strong ambition that I had at one point. It has essentially been repeating processes ever since. Now, I've found web development. There's still programming involved. The steps aren't much different in the learning curve. If anything, one might think the learning curve is more difficult. I've always been a stylish type of person, which is why I believe I find web development more my forte. I can't wait to progress my web development experience and hopefully make a career out of it.

Recently, I've started diving into cryptocurrency. Learning about it, investing in it (slightly, not all in), and figuring out ways that I can make a career out of crypto. As I've said, I'm a dreamer. Though my plans or dreams if you will, are very well thought out. Unfortunately, for crypto, in order to get rich, you need to essentially be wealthy to get started. I feel as though I would be able to make smart investments that would heavily pay off shortly in the future. I will never stop searching and learning new ways to progress my financial stability and ultimately reach financial freedom.

I would also consider myself to be a generally outgoing person. I love conversation, and I love to make people feel good while I'm talking to them. You never know when someone may be having a bad day. You never know when someone may just need a pick me up because they're on the verge of spiraling down a deep dark hole. I've always taken the saying "Leave your personal life out the door when you come into work" and have incorporated it into my personal and social life as well. Unless it's a very close friend I'm talking to who knows my situation, I generally am always just supportive and throw humor into conversations at the most opportune times. This is one reason I hope Infamous will consider me.

I also consider myself just to be a very helpful person in general. I'm not the most intelligent person. I'm not the most technical skilled person. HF is primarily for hacking and coding. The marketplace has also become a highly prominent fixture as well. That said, outside of these sections, I do my best to help people wherever possible. In the future, I'd also like to get involved with collaborative giveaways or challenges that reward users based on the challenge.

Outside of everything mentioned, I do love to work out whenever I can. Injuries have ridden me over the past 4 years though, so I've been struggling with discipline to stay active in the gym. My motivation has been hit or miss as well. With summer coming up just around the corner, I definitely want to get back to super active in the gym. I also love to play basketball and disk golf sports wise. I've also found the sauna to be pretty incredible as of the past few months (I've never used it prior to the past few months)

I'm also big into creativity. Because of this, I absolutely love the idea of Dungeons & Dragons. I actually just bought a D&D board game for my nephew's birthday in hopes that him and my brother-in-law will want to link up for some awesome D&D sessions. I'd also be interested if anyone from Infamous plays D&D and is looking to start a new campaign at some point in time.

Again, thanks for the opportunity to even apply for Infamous! Feel free to reach out via DM if you need more information or just want to chat. Until then!

Best wishes,
Sasuke

anoncrab - March 3, 2024, 12:15 am

I'm not sure if there is still a spot open, but here's my application:

I'm anoncrab, a member of Hackforums since about 3 years ago. I've been very active lately, and have been posting very frequently. I mainly post in the lounge section, but sometimes post in the technology section of the forum, as well as some marketplace threads, normally to wish seller good luck with sales.

My hobbies include programming, gaming, watching movies and TV, and posting on HF. I don't really do too much hacking anymore, but I sometimes get the itch to do something related to it.

Mainly these days I'm playing games or chilling at home. I'm also in college, but that doesn't affect my activity on these forums at all.

I used to be in Pink LSZ, but they kicked me out a long time ago because I lost access to my account last year and stopped posting for a while. But I finally got access back at like the latter-end of last year.

Hopefully if you guys are still accepting people, you consider me. I have a lot of reputation on these forums.

I'm back on HF after many years away and looking for a group to settle in with.

Not going to be flowery about my qualifications.

I'm a pentester, malware & exploit dev. Top of my field. Presenter @ conferences, but I like my privacy. Formerly wrote tutorials and trained users in early pentesting back in 2008-2020 before I went on hiatus to pursue my infosec career. Now I'm peaking in my career field and income streams with a shitty job market that is making it hard to find something better. I'm looking to maximize my online income and dredge a few kids out of the trenches and up to their next level.

DM if you need further details.

I was apart of Infamous years ago before I went to prison and my subsequent departure from the forums - but fuck it I'll throw my hat in the ring.

I'm NGMA, 29 Years old from Florida - Not as active anymore on the forum or in the hacking scene but once upon a time I was a pretty experienced black hat. I ended up being charged for securities fraud, bank fraud and cc fraud did some time in federal prison for it, struggled with addiction for many years but recently celebrated 18 months clean. Finally getting to a place in my life where I'm happy, I decided to make a return to the forums and maybe bring with it some life advice for the younger generation of hackers.

More of a bio than an app but hey, worth a shot.

Hard to tell. I think it was somewhere around 2012-2013 when I was very active on here. My activity went down considerably from 2014 onward. But I remember that banner specifically. Unlocked a core memory.
