Thread: Current crypto portfolio.

SnowreyHS - February 14, 2024, 12:59 pm

Hello everyone!

I'm in crypto for a couple of years but I've accumulated maximum I can for the past 2 years.

Listened here and there about projects, my thoughts were to only accumulate bitcoin from the start but got raked in other projects... But most of the projects performed well so I am not really that bummed out.

The bull run is yet to go off this year, what are your thoughts on it?
If you were in my shoes what would you change and why?

@SIM-3183372 Only 3.44% in BTC? That is extreme badbart - February 15, 2024, 3:59 am that's a good looking portfolio. Halving is just around the corner and Bitcoin starts to rise up again incidentally.

I sold all my BTC for SUI in October, this is just what I've repurchased since then.

Still sitting at greater than 0.1 BTC.

So I guess you must really believe in SUI if you're still not selling it, seeing how much it soared in price since October. Do you think it's going to outperform BTC in this bull cycle?

I do very much believe in SUI. I believe their roadmap offers significant room for further growth, that they have one of the best teams in all of web3, both at Mysten Labs and the Sui Foundation, and I believe that most people are only just now starting to notice SUI. Their partnerships and deals team continue to win powerful relationships, and their engineers continue to improve UX, paving the way for broader on-boarding of non-web3 users, and the builder community continues to preach that SUI offers the #1 developer experience across all of web3. I'd be shocked if SUI doesn't eventually become a top 10 coin (excluding stables).

SUI has a large token unlock in May, I don't know how the markets are going to prepare for this unlock or react to the unlock. I plan on holding through this period (I'm getting a killer rate holding and staking SUI/afSUI LP (liquid staked SUI so my exposure is still just SUI)) but it makes it hard for me to say what it may or may not outperform over the next ~6-12 months.

Unless you're one of my clients, In which case they want to stick with 10 year old+ technology (happily) regardless if it's better or not just because they are afraid of change.....

But money is and technology will follow money so.. logical to invest in alts if you dont have millions.Also this is exactly why bitcoin developers are shifting into other projects.In reality nobody really care anything about bitcoin or anything, entire idea of humanity building around money not tech, otherwise we would build mars colonies already instead of nuking each other.

I agree, which is why I'm betting on Sui.

Pricing comes from the market which does include those things. Look at Doge for an excellent example of community and relationships pushing pricing way more than the technology of Doge.

Performance of technology is often an important factor but ends up being meaningless to pricing if there is no community to create the market.

I guess I'm more old fashioned lol

Pablo? - February 26, 2024, 11:59 am

RVN 24.79%
ATOM 16.56%
ICX 16.30%
RUNE 11.75%
1INCH 4.73%
ETHW 4.28%
ALGO 4.27%
and others

this is what im playing with

VIVALACRYPTESTA - March 3, 2024, 2:07 pm

Seems as you're going good currently... FTM did a nice pump today, alongside DOT and NEAR.

SIM-1866423 - March 3, 2024, 10:18 pm

Nobody can be stupid than me i guess i did split into 60+ different coin, will reach 100+ coin. Microcaps your only option if you play your cards right 7 digits is not that weird even with 5 digits investments.

Net - March 4, 2024, 4:05 am

I sold most of my altcoins last year, since most of the projects either slowed down or were dead. I try to focus more long term, so I don't have a high risk portfolio. So far it looks like this:

BTC 83.00%
LTC 12.35%
ETH 2.92%
BNB 1.63%

Everything else is under >1% of my portfolio, not worth showing it. I am a HUGE fan of Litecoin.
