Yeah title says it all ig, Don't really know anyone else with similar interests but would be cool to have a telegram group or discord server and have people to colab on projects with and help each other with debugging etc (defs would be a few around but all I keep finding is people tryna sell a course or some shit lol)

Forums are a community. They function by you participating. They do NOT function by requesting to be contacted on sketchy third-party platforms. You are already here.

That is the goal, to protect everyone on the forum. No need to provide other form of contact unless you are vendor etc for clients to reach you.

Every "group" is different but in my opinion it's important for people to establish trust on HF before jumping into off-site groups. At least for me, I wouldn't invite someone if they haven't done that yet.

You'll be delighted to know then that HF has instant messaging via convo. It supports groups as well as individual messaging. Take your coat off and stay awhile. ?
