DHCP starvation is an attack where an attacker floods a DHCP server with numerous requests for IP address leases, thereby depleting the pool of available addresses. This can result in denial of service for legitimate clients or enable the attacker to distribute malicious IP addresses.

Check out this resource: <https://www.prosec-networks.com/en/blog/dhcp-starvation-attack/>
You'll find a nice description of what it is, what tools can accomplish it, and a step-by-step PoC walkthrough.
