

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Reactions to the Lockbit takedown

CaptechPhD - February 24, 2024, 5:25 am

The Lockbit takedown has been all over the news this week. Seems international law enforcement collaborated to hack the hackers. Cyber security researchers have been speculating on how Lockbit and its affiliates will respond.

What impact do you think these take downs have? Do they have an impact on other hackers, not associated with Lockbit? What do you think Lockbit will do now?

Euaggelistes - February 24, 2024, 6:00 am

Indeed. It will likely move other groups to learn from this situation and make some adjustments so that the same doesn't happen to them.
Lockbit will likely reassemble, probably under a new name.

Dharkma - February 24, 2024, 6:14 am

Only a few arrests have been made. I doubt they'll catch everyone, so most likely they'll be under a new name.

raphaelthief - February 25, 2024, 10:00 am

LockBit is back

Here you ve all the informations from the creator of LockBit (I cant post links you have to assemble it) :
http s://sample s.vx-underground.or g/tmp/Lockbit_Statem ent_2024-02-24.txt

CaptechPhD - February 25, 2024, 11:27 am

(Feb 25, 2024 11:00 AM)raphaelthief Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) LockBit is back

Here you ve all the informations from the creator of LockBit (I cant post links you have to assemble it) :
http
s://sample
s.vx-underground.or g/tmp/Lockbit_Statem ent_2024-02-24.txt
That was fast. It will be interesting to see what happens next.

raphaelthief - March 16, 2024, 1:57 am

(Feb 25, 2024 12:27 PM)CaptechPhD Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) That was fast. It will be interesting to see what happens next.
They are the leader in RaaS, so this communication is for reputational purposes I guess

Their activity will continue normally I think

SIM-5420967 - March 16, 2024, 3:25 pm

LockBit is impressive, but I don't like ransomwares in general since this is a high level of Cybercrime.

Jamika - March 16, 2024, 4:48 pm

(Feb 24, 2024 06:25 AM)CaptechPhD Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) The Lockbit takedown has been all over the news this week. Seems international law enforcement collaborated to hack the hackers. Cyber security researchers have been speculating on how Lockbit and its affiliates will respond.

What impact do you think these take downs have? Do they have an impact on other hackers, not associated with Lockbit? What do you think Lockbit will do now?

Nothing major will happen as i think, they will need to be more covered next time only