Thread: [\[Poll\] Did you own a dreamcast?](#) seems like an interesting console. i just think it's cool that some modern devs make their games backwards compatible with the dreamcast despite its age (there's a rocket league clone with CROSSPLAY??)

I loved my Sega Dreamcast. It could play burnable games so my friend went online and burnt every game available and gave me this huge binder filled with games.

yeah the write protection on that thing was garbage, the current year sd card mods don't require burning though which I like since I hate cds lol

It's a shame they couldn't bring out a sequel and keep them going. I spent so many hours playing mine. I found an emulator site a decade ago that had a bunch of the games and I had a blast getting to replay some of them.

That brings back memories of the Utopia bootdisk with the reindeer.

I used to play this game called Seaman on the dreamcast where u basically would take care of these human like fish. Shit was weird but funny at the same time cause you where able to talk to the using the mic.

Heres a clip: [Video: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=YRpQYNfQVlk>]

Never had a dreamcast. Thought they were slow and hated the gameplay.

What is that dream cast? Is it a type of console?

I was (still am!) a huge fan of the Dreamcast. I remember waking up one Christmas morning as a kid and unwrapping it. I was one of only a few kids in school at that age who had a Dreamcast!

Some of my favourite games were Phantasy Star Online: Ver 2, Sonic Adventure 2, Wetrix, Red Dog, and House of the Dead 2.

SAdly by the time I got the internet at my house, most of the online game servers had closed down. Although I have recently heard of something called the Dream Pi, which can connect your DC to modern broadband, and re-route many of the old defunct servers to new online ones.

Power Stone 2 will forever be in my top 3 games.

I'm plenty familiar with them, but never owned one unfortunately. I believe the first system I had was an NES. Or that's at least the one I can actually remember playing something on at the earliest in my life lol.

I've heard cool things about the dreamcast but never owned one. But the intro for it is fucking sick.

Yeah this thread actually had me going and looking up things about early day consoles or simply those that came out prior to the one I had earliest (NES). Some pretty awesome stuff from back in the day.

Didn't have one, wish i had though.

DemonAsylum - March 15, 2024, 11:02 am

Seems like the poll is down the middle. I wonder if there is anyone that voted "i didn't/wtf is a dreamcast" that did so for the "wtf is a dreamcast" part of it haha.
