Does anyone, and I mean anyone know of this neat little thing?

my god, it's awesome. it can't do everything but it makes the motto "hack the planet" legitimate. won't lie I'm kinda of a skid, but who can't create an ir button to turn on or off their TV? this thing does that by the way.

I can pull a shitty and just put a link to my youtube vid of this but imma show Linux tech tips instead, yeah, he reviewed it.

anyhow, this video pretty much covers it.

welp, honestly he said almost everything you need besides something imma try and make a decent YouTube video on this.

yall be safe and stay safe

My flipper has been the most fun with a gadget I've had in the longest time.

What are you using to get on intercoms? I'm using Xtreme and unless I'm retarded it's something I haven't found yet.

Gonna love this but unleashed is meant more for sub ghz, I'm using momentum, deadass came out I think last week, you get the customization of extreme and the sub ghz of unleashed while also unlocking fuckin java script dawg. You can extract people's PC info directly to the flipper now, fuck email. Anyhow momentum is actually a combo of the best of all worlds, highly recommend if need be I can put out exactly what I'm using with all my databases if you want

I've been collecting a bunch things I've found and getting ready to release all that into a git.

My flipper was pretty fun to mess around with, but outside of using it to turn off the projector in my school once, I don't really have a use for it. I may have to upgrade from unleashed to the new momentum firmware, but I don't know what it could do that would interest me enough to dust off the flipper and get to using it again. If it could either make me money, or let me pull off some hilarious pranks in public spaces (I know its possible, i just don't know what it can do besides just turning a tv off, which isn't very exciting), then i'd get back into it.

I would assume most in the hacking community on HF know about the Flipper Zero. I first heard of this easily over a year ago, maybe even over two years ago. They came out back in 2020.

They're not a "hack all" device, but they sure as shit can bypass just about any type of gates, locks, pins, and so much more. Best part is you can keep adding onto it with more boards. Possibilities are almost endless really.

What's the craziest thing you've done with yours so far SIM-5234130 ?

I opened a Tesla charge thing while it was driving down the road, but that's not really crazy huh? I got something a lil better, buy a CB antenna, an adapter for sma connectors, n use it with the flipper (if you got the Subghz thing, I'm a nerd n made my own lol) you can send them shits anywhere, I got an 18ft one somewhere just laying around. I attempted to use the garage door opener but saw nothing, I did however find out that someone's weather thing like idk half a mile to a mile away was saying the humidity was at 255 and the temperature was at 84. the temp was 70-73 that day. it was this or turn all ceiling fans on near me.
