Chung - March 7, 2024, 3:15 am

Mines also relating to my finances! I'm in a pretty dead/standard 9-5 office job that pays at the low end.

I've lost a fortune to crypto trading in the last 3 years plus I'm in a debt due to my recklessness so that's that. I haven't slept in weeks and dunno what to do anymore. I hope this upcoming bull run will save me.

Apocryphon - March 7, 2024, 6:34 am

Worrying too much about the health lately. I've been in and out of the hospital too often, makes me wonder what age quota we gonna reach. Eh!

Regulus - March 7, 2024, 9:07 am

Mine is health worries, and what the future has to offer.

Ash Ketchum - March 7, 2024, 9:49 am

Life.. in general life is a mystery and we never know what's coming or going, death is our only certainty so there's no fear for it in my mind, but the variables in everyday life make everything concerning the instability of the world right now creates great discomfort economically and personally.

M1L3NK0 - March 7, 2024, 10:18 am

Mine would also be being broke forever. Recently I've been debating moving to a nearby city to hopefully get some financial relief without resorting to staying with my parents. My hometown has had insane growth since before I was born, I just can't keep up.

an4l 1st - March 7, 2024, 10:23 am dying is probably the only worry I have now... hopefully some satoshi-like person will create a way to transfer consciousness to some sort of hardware that can mimic the brain... then we would be able to last a lot longer to find a way to exist even if matter is unsustainable.

That I'll never find that forever job, I have done physical labor, I've office work, drove for a living worked with rotomill resin ovens and now I am in a warehouse for the past four years. I recently (September) injured myself at work, been home awaiting a third nerve conduction on my arm and now it is a week away, I find myself filled with anger that I may have to go back, I have myself convinced I have grew as much as I can grow there, I know/do more then people who have been there for decade+ my boss gives me extra tasks he is suppose to do because he said I do them better, there's no room for me to grow anytime soon as my boss is only a few years older then me and I feel that yet again I'm going to end up leaving a job I've been at for years, with amazing pay, full benefits paid by the company and a few perks here and there.

Zalbai - March 7, 2024, 11:44 am

My biggest worry is the future of humanity. That they become more and more emotionless like robots, that they become more and more stupid and unable to feel human emotions. These poor people don't know that their lives are being controlled, telling them what to do, what to think and what to feel.

In short, my worry is that the movie: Idiocracy turns out to be true.

Not ashamed to admit I have been battling anxiety disorder that chased me for absolutely no obvious reason for a few years.

I also started to have hypertension recently, my blood pressure rises and I generally does not feel well about it. I would need to relax in order to bring it to normal values and then it stays normal for many hours.

I already had cardiologist appointments a few times and we are just monitoring how the things are going but that's it for now - no pills.

?nxy - March 7, 2024, 6:24 pm

My worry is gods possessive powers!

anoncrab - March 8, 2024, 12:41 am

Probably for me it's not being able to get my drivers license and afford a car.

Syndicate - March 25, 2024, 12:05 pm

Man, there's way too many to even try and list off all of them My top 3 would be losing my current girlfriend somehow, being unable to live a happy and free life and worried about just making it through the month mentally and/or with enough money.
