Thread: [\[Official Group\] Refactor | Recruitment | Invite Only](#)

jcole - March 17, 2024, 9:01 am

Refactor is an action-focused group dedicated to learning, teaching, and improving the community. The group's primary focus is on developing software, sharing ideas, and knowledge. We are also open to recruiting those interested in business, security, cryptocurrencies, and other fields of expertise.

Thanks jcole, looking forward to everyone that wants to join!

Undead - March 17, 2024, 9:29 am

I'd be very interested in joining Refactor given the opportunity. For a while I've been looking to be part of a group that is active so I can meet some cool people, share knowledge and expertise and just contribute in any way I can. I don't have much experience of software development but have general experience in Tech Support, cybersecurity and some other random IT skills that might be useful to the group.

Popular - March 17, 2024, 9:56 am

Hello!

I would be interested in being part of the group, I can dedicate being active and being a good representation as a helpful, encouraging, positive member. I am a full stack web developer and love coding websites! Thank you.

John Hawkins - March 17, 2024, 10:41 am

Best of luck with this awesome group! <3

DashPHP - March 17, 2024, 11:29 am

Ayyy nice thread!

I can see the group has had quite the sweeping since I joined a few weeks ago. Blessed I am still part of the gang.

Can't wait to connect with like minded individuals and can't wait to contribute where I can.

Can I join again?

We have a good thing going. :(

StuffSneak - March 17, 2024, 1:12 pm

I would love to get opportunity to join in here. 1st thing, would like to learn few things on programming/automation side of things & 2nd, love the group graphics!

Kalvaxas - March 17, 2024, 4:09 pm

I've been waiting for Refractor to open up recruitment. Honestly, I love the design and everything about it. I will say, I've been dabbling in crypto, and it's something I want to get super serious about. I know a little bit about programming, but I'm mainly learning Web development.

If there's room for me in Refractor, then I'd love to join if you'll have me.

CHAOS - March 18, 2024, 9:08 pm

I'd like to be a part of the group and share ideas/resources, always down to learn new skillsets about pretty much everything related to tech and crypto.

Looking forward for your approval.

Looks great man. Love to see groups taking a stride.

Euaggelistes - March 19, 2024, 9:15 am

I'd love to apply for the group! Personally, I like to provide assistance when I can, especially to newer ones to the fields of security and programming. In addition, I love digging deep into the nerdy aspects of tech and discussing some advanced topics.

A few new members have been added. I'll have to update the thread, but have been very busy with work or DIY projects at home. We are actively looking for new members for recruitment and for those that have applied please don't feel like your application is denied or overlooked, we are still going through applications.

Dear Group Owner and Leader!

Good Day to you!

I hope this post finds you well. My name is DarkWolf, and I am writing to express my interest in joining Refactor Group. From what I have learned about your community, I am enthusiastic about the prospect of becoming a member and contributing to its collective goals and endeavours. I am an Experienced cryptocurrency trader with a strong track record of analyzing market trends, executing profitable trades, and managing risk. Proficient in technical analysis, charting tools, and trading platforms. I understand that membership to this group is by invitation only, and I would be grateful for the opportunity to get an invitation from you.

Thank you for considering my request. I look forward to the possibility of joining the group and contributing to its vibrant community.

With Warm regards,
DarkWolf

I am interested in joining refactor, my account dates back to 2013 never had a interest in being apart of anything up till now.

My primary focus is software development, despite me getting a job in IT after graduating with a BS in software engineering, the individuals i work with unfortunately do not share the same interests as myself with this type of stuff. my main goal is to get involved with people so that i may learn from and share what knowledge i have with others and grow as a result.

-Thank you, SIM

Confound - September 18, 2024, 1:35 pm

Hi Porn and Jcole, and to the other Refactor members.

My name is Confound, and I am interested in joining Refactor. As I've grown over the years on the forum, I have developed and maintained an interest in giving back to the community. When I first joined HF, I was inexperienced, but eager to learn. There were several members who offered support, guidance, and education for me to learn the skills necessary to conduct safe Internet safe practices from an opsec perspective, learn how to make money online, and develop skills that one can gain from surfing HF and it's various sub forums.

As a result of this exposure and access to education I received, I made it one of my many missions on site to maintain a certain level or high standard of posting etiquette, offer resources and education where I can, help new members, and offer giveaways and give back to the community when I can.

It's clear to me based on the group's mission statement that my values and interests on the forum very much align with the group's. I love to learn, share knowledge, teach members of the community how to profit over the internet, and help contribute and participate in upholding the sites rules and values. Participating amongst the community has always been an enjoyable past time, and helping the site remain a high quality environment for sharing ideas is deeply important to me.

Being a part of Refactor seems like an exciting opportunity. I have not had much interest in groups on Hack Forums since the Red Lions, which I was a co-leader of. The Red Lions was an incredibly exciting and dynamic opportunity for me as it helped push me to be better, and encourage other members of the forum to do the same. This meant posting more high quality content for users to get access to, as well as just in general be a better person on and off-line.

It seems like Refactor encourages its members to do the same, similar to what the Red Lions stood for. I believe there are still opportunities in today's day and age on Hack Forums to still actively participate in this value system I describe here. I look forward to hopefully collaborating with other group members on projects where our experience and what we have to offer aligns, as I have recently experienced a refreshing desire to participate more and offer more to the community, as I once did more often in the past.

I am hoping that you all see the passion that I have, and believe I can be additive to your overall mission and agenda.

Here are some threads that I believe will help showcase what I am about and what I stand for -

I'm Stanley HF's helper bot. The OP (original poster) of this thread wants everyone to see this page and has elected to bump it to the top of the showthread listing. Since HF doesn't want a ton of LQP (Low Quality Posts) this is the best method of bumping your content. There is a small ?yte fee for each bump. Any OP can bump any of their threads on HF from the linked icon on the top of their first post.

If you haven't already read the first post of this thread we encourage you to do so.

Thanks,
