

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Just moved out of my parents, what can i expect?

pms - March 23, 2024, 1:52 pm

First night alone in my new apartment, got wine and food so i'm enjoying every second of the quietness.

I got pretty lucky with this appartment, it has a nice view over a lake, also a big balcony.

However, now that i'm on my own, what can I expect from this? Is it that much different than living with my parents?

I'm used to cooking my own food, cleaning my room, doing laundry etc. As well as paying monthly rent.

Charlie Sheen - March 23, 2024, 1:56 pm

Just more freedom and feeling relaxed. It's a pretty cool feeling when ya get up in the middle of the night and go to the kitchen and you're looking around at everything and thinking "this is my place".

There will be times you feel lonely. That's when I used to just call someone or find someone to talk to online. I didn't get much alone time though, I got my first apartment and started dating my now wife like 2 weeks later.

Komodo - March 23, 2024, 1:57 pm

Seems like you were already adulting before you moved out, good for you man.

Hope your new crib is everything you dreamed it would be.

pms - March 23, 2024, 2:01 pm

(Mar 23, 2024 01:56 PM)Charlie Sheen Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Just more freedom and feeling relaxed. It's a pretty cool feeling when ya get up in the middle of the night and go to the kitchen and you're looking around at everything and thinking "this is my place".

There will be times you feel lonely. That's when I used to just call someone or find someone to talk to online. I didn't get much alone time though, I got my first apartment and started dating my now wife like 2 weeks later.

The freedom feeling is amazing really, i feel it. I do have a girlfriend that ish lives here but also lives at home still. Yes i look forward to walking to the kitchen in the middle of the night, dick swinging. ?

(Mar 23, 2024 01:57 PM)Komodo Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Seems like you were already adulting before you moved out, good for you man.

Hope your new crib is everything you dreamed it would be.

I guess i was really, my mother was really tough in some ways.

It's perfect for me and my girlfriend, it isnt the biggest but shit man, the view is everything.

Komodo - March 23, 2024, 2:16 pm

(Mar 23, 2024 02:01 PM)pms Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) The freedom feeling is amazing really, i feel it. I do have a girlfriend that ish lives here but also lives at home still. Yes i look forward to walking to the kitchen in the middle of the night, dick swinging. ?

I guess i was really, my mother was really tough in some ways.

It's perfect for me and my girlfriend, it isn't the biggest but shit man, the view is everything. I would downsize my house if it meant a view. Views > space.

But honestly the only real difference is everyday items and loneliness. Seems like you're good with the girlfriend coming over, the everyday items sometimes add up. Laundry detergent, toilet paper, paper towels, snacks, tools, all that kind of shit added up when I first moved out forever ago.

Mooooookie - March 23, 2024, 2:19 pm

Freedom, freedom, and more freedom. You've now entered the world of being a true adult. All responsibilities fall on you. Anything goes wrong, you're the one that needs to look after it. A lot more responsibility comes with living on your own, but man is it a great feeling.

DashPHP - March 23, 2024, 2:33 pm

That sounds bloody lit man.

I still live with my parents, but they're sooo chill I haven't quite had the urge of moving out.

So I just stack me cash while enjoying my time with parents.

Hope you're not too far away from them!

Jamika - March 23, 2024, 3:02 pm

(Mar 23, 2024 01:52 PM)pms Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) First night alone in my new apartment, got wine and food so i'm enjoying every second of the quietness.

I got pretty lucky with this apartment, it has a nice view over a lake, also a big balcony.

However, now that i'm on my own, what can I expect from this? Is it that much different than living with my parents?

I'm used to cooking my own food, cleaning my room, doing laundry etc. As well as paying monthly rent.

Good job my friend, think the next step is to find a good job stable to marry a girl

Kalvaxas - March 23, 2024, 3:06 pm

More freedom for sure. After awhile, the feeling of freedom will die down and you'll start to feel pretty lonely. You'll never want to move back home again, but you'll definitely miss having people around from time to time. Other than that, bills, bills, and more bills. You'll have to do all of your shopping of course. Dealing with health insurance and everything else that needs a change of address update, sucks. For the most part, the post office takes care of forwarding mail for like 6 months I think? To your new address. You'll need to call all of your doctors and such to let them know, though.

pms - March 23, 2024, 3:20 pm

(Mar 23, 2024 02:33 PM)DashPHP Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) That sounds bloody lit man.

I still live with my parents, but they're sooo chill I haven't quite had the urge of moving out.

So I just stack me cash while enjoying my time with parents.

Hope you're not too far away from them!

No joke i live like a 30 second walk from them, they live right in front of me haha.

(Mar 23, 2024 03:02 PM)Jamika Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Good job my friend, think the next step is to find a good job stable to marry a girl

I have a girlfriend and a stable job, fully employed. Guess it's just death from now on :D

(Mar 23, 2024 03:06 PM)Kalvaxas Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) More freedom for sure. After awhile, the feeling of freedom will die down and you'll start to feel pretty lonely. You'll never want to move back home again, but you'll definitely miss having people around from time to time. Other than that, bills, bills, and more bills. You'll have to do all of your shopping of course. Dealing with health insurance and everything else that needs a change of address update, sucks. For the most part, the post office takes care of forwarding mail for like 6 months I think? To your new address. You'll need to call all of your doctors and such to let them know, though.

Luckily, i live in sweden. I just change my address on one site and it changes pretty much everywhere. But yes i'm waiting for the bills to roll in x)

(Mar 23, 2024 02:19 PM)Mooooookie Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Freedom, freedom, and more freedom. You've now entered the world of being a true adult. All responsibilities fall on you. Anything goes wrong, you're the one that needs to look after it. A lot more responsibility comes with living on your own, but man is it a great feeling.

Sure feels great, im sure ill be fine in the future. Keep working, keep doing music.

Syndicate - March 23, 2024, 3:43 pm

Honestly, the odds and ends (toilet paper, shampoo, conditioner, toothpaste, hand towels... etc.) will start to add up. Start buying things slowly, even when you don't exactly need them yet. Everything I buy, I always get double what I need because you will run out of things.

Toscan - March 23, 2024, 3:47 pm

Bills, bills, and bills. Hopefully you have steady income. Sounds like you don't have a girlfriend/kids. Which saves a lot of money and responsibilities. If you have decent income to what you're paying out. You will be fine. Take care my friend. =]

OpSecSurvival - March 23, 2024, 3:52 pm

you will grow to love your new freedom!!! just dont squander it! keep GOOD people around you! stay away from bad places and bad people!

wishing you all the best friend! i remember the day i first moved out and was alone in that studio apartment....

DashPHP - March 23, 2024, 3:58 pm

(Mar 23, 2024 03:20 PM)pms Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) No joke i live like a 30 second walk from them, they live right in front of me haha.

Brooo that's actually lit as fuck!!!! If anything, I will be doing the same.

In my area, a lot of new high apartments have been constructed and may consider movin into a local high rise building.

However everyone's happy here so I'm not sure when I'm trying to move out.

pms - March 23, 2024, 4:08 pm

(Mar 23, 2024 03:47 PM)Toscan Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Bills, bills, and bills. Hopefully you have steady income. Sounds like you don't have a girlfriend/kids. Which saves a lot of money and responsibilities. If you have decent income to what you're paying out. You will be fine. Take care my friend. =]

I do have a stable job and a girlfriend heh, girlfriends are more expensive than the bill aye. Cheers man, you 2!

(Mar 23, 2024 03:58 PM)DashPHP Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Brooo that's actually lit as fuck!!!! If anything, I will be doing the same.

In my area, a lot of new high apartments have been constructed and may consider movin into a local high rise building.

However everyone's happy here so I'm not sure when I'm trying to move out.
It's pretty cool haha, just ran over to get some butter to make hamburgers with. Sounds dope, think you'll be moving soon or chill for a year or so?

(Mar 23, 2024 03:52 PM)OpSecSurvival Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) you will grow to love your new freedom!!! just don't squander it! keep GOOD people around you! stay away from bad places and bad people!

wishing you all the best friend! I remember the day I first moved out and was alone in that studio apartment....

I already love it haha, trust me I value my freedom a lot! I don't really have a lot of people around me, just my band mates and my girlfriend really.

Thank you!

V?rt - March 23, 2024, 8:43 pm

Congrats OP! Hope you enjoy it. The things I would do to go back to being a bachelor with my own place. I miss the days of not caring what to eat and when and what to do. Just enjoy your freedoms man.

Yanix - March 23, 2024, 9:32 pm

(Mar 23, 2024 01:52 PM)pms Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) First night alone in my new apartment, got wine and food so I'm enjoying every second of the quietness.

I got pretty lucky with this apartment, it has a nice view over a lake, also a big balcony.

However, now that I'm on my own, what can I expect from this? Is it that much different than living with my parents?

I'm used to cooking my own food, cleaning my room, doing laundry etc. As well as paying monthly rent.

Living on your own can bring newfound independence and self-discovery, offering the freedom to shape your environment and routines. While it may feel different from living with your parents, it's an opportunity for personal growth and creating a space uniquely your own. It may be hard at start but you will get to enjoy it much more each day.

Kalvaxas - March 23, 2024, 9:35 pm

(Mar 23, 2024 09:32 PM)Yanix Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Living on your own can bring newfound independence and self-discovery, offering the freedom to shape your environment and routines. While it may feel different from living with your parents, it's an opportunity for personal growth and creating a space uniquely your own. It may be hard at start but you will get to enjoy it much more each day.

I feel like I just read a prompt from ChatGPT ?

All of this is true though. If you were raised right, then becoming independent is easier than you may think. Adulting still sucks, but it's still much better than living with parents.

Yanix - March 23, 2024, 9:40 pm

(Mar 23, 2024 09:35 PM)Kalvaxas Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I feel like I just read a prompt from ChatGPT ?

All of this is true though. If you were raised right, then becoming independent is easier than you may think. Adulting still sucks, but it's still much better than living with parents.

At start I have struggle living out on our own with my wife but at the end it makes me more stronger and much more independent doing everything on my own with my wife. When our first baby arrives we don't know anything how to raise our own child but we still managed to raise her in our own special way, now we got 2 kids with us and still we are on our daily struggles but it's worth the time spent with our own family.

Sefusefusef - March 26, 2024, 6:50 pm

u will get used to all the bad stuff dw, takes time tho