

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: how wikipedia works?

chormet - March 27, 2024, 2:16 am i want to know how wikipedia works?

when i edit a thing on wikipedia with real details, immediately someone revert it and not let me done, can you please let me know how i should change something other one cant change it easily?

Koyote - March 27, 2024, 2:38 am

(Mar 27, 2024 02:16 AM)chormet Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) i want to know how wikipedia works?

when i edit a thing on wikipedia with real details, immediately someone revert it and not let me done,

can you please let me know how i should change something other one cant change it easily?
Have you made a lot of silly edits in the past on the same IP address? If you have a history of defacing pages, your edits won't stick, or they'll get flagged and auto reverted. If you have an account with a history of positive edits that are accepted, generally speaking you won't have an issue. If the latter applies to you and you're still having problems, I'd reach out to a support rep (if they exist) and plead your case.

Mooooookie - March 27, 2024, 2:50 am Change your IP and try again. I have would suggest using a mobile IP, less chance of your IP being flagged.

Rahul007rhp - March 27, 2024, 3:00 am Change your device and do it with a new IP . It might just work out

Lefty - March 27, 2024, 9:08 am

Some pages you can edit, even without a login. But some others are locked. Keep in mind users on Wikipedia take their hobby pretty seriously and if you edit a page that is fairly well known. Then it won't be long until its switched back again.