You can have family you never met and you can love and trust the same. You all stay strong and keep HF a rollin on with good format. Much love from iNviZ

Kind of nice to be around such an amazing group of individuals. One day maybe I will consider you all my family.

I love it here. I do wish it was a little more busy with activity, but I'm guessing that can change anyday, right?

It's truly amazing how we can find real friends among people we've never met, yet love, respect and trust them just the same.

I hope. we just continue to stay resilient and maintain the positive atmosphere here on Hack Forums. Have a wonderful weekend everyone. Keep safe and God bless.

The internet changed the world for sure. Definitely for the better. We're lucky to be living in such a time. Love is everywhere. I love you too. :)

I have many friends I've made online that I still think about till this day ppl I've met online over 15+ years ago that I never met in person. Take care fam.

For the better and for the worse. The internet has done a lot on both sides of the spectrum and in more ways than any 1 person will ever be able to see or even realize. Nonetheless, I'm really grateful to have it, be living during this time, and to have made the friends that I now consider family through such an amazing thing.

I completely agree with you, I wouldn't have made so many friendships, wouldn't have met anyone here on HF, my gf.. etc. The list can go on forever ?

For sure. Friends, friends turned family, significant others, money, opportunities, etc, etc. So much and for so many has come from this wonderful and also terrible thing that is the internet haha.
