Thread: Crypto Bots For Generating Revenue

Mooooookie - March 30, 2024, 5:35 pm

What are your thoughts? One of my friends that I partnered with on some tube sites back in the day, was showing me how he is running this crypto ai bot, and has currently 9 clients that he is generating profits for.

From what he said, min earnings are 10% a month, with a potential of 20-25%. He was showing me the bot running via any desk. Tbh, I'm not too sure what I was looking at. He did his best to explain it, and I understand the concept, but no clue how correct the averages are. He said he worked with the bot for 18 months using dummy funds to learn the bot, and now has it pretty much figured out.

Anyone know anything about this stuff? Do those numbers sound correct? Anyone have their money invested in one of these ai bots?

Never have, but would def like to know more about it, can you get access to the bot? Would love to check it out

I have no idea what your business partner's niche is but if its a crypto ai trading bot, and he has the right parameters then most likely he is profiting from what he is doing and very much his clients.

This sort of method IMHO is profitable but comes with very much high risk as it is automated and you wouldn't be monitoring it most of the time.

I remember seeing ads on YT about ai bots for crypto a while back, but assumed it was snake oil.

There are a lot my friend and most of them are either click baits for the views or just plain saturated. Anyway, if your business partner can provide you legitimate numbers then I guess you should pay attention and try to play with him on his venture. It would be a great opportunity.

He's not my business partner, just someone I partnered with on some adult tube site stuff years ago. Haven't done any business with him since then though.

I believe he wants me to be one of his clients... Before investing any money, wanted to see if anyone else had any success in this field and if yes, how guaranteed is it?

Oh okay sorry, when you say "partnered" I think its "business partner" but okay okay sorry about that. Well he is someone you already know but money is on the line so its better to be more vigilant, ask him for proof like videos and also transaction addresses of the crypto he is playing with.

But I would like to remind you this is very risky since its crypto.

Good suggestion. I forgot about that, that you can see the history of an address. So it should be easy for him to be transparent about money he's already played with.

I've seen a lot of these bots. Generally, the way they "make money" is by charging a monthly subscription fee, or by taking a percentage of the trade whether or not the user profits on the transaction. While it's not impossible to profit with them, it's very hard to confirm that even a 10% profit is being made on the actual transactions.

Binance offers options for trading bots. I've never used or tried them, but I would love to hear from someone who has, to see how it went.

Made my solana sniping bot rn implementing anti rug pull rules hopefully will be functional within couple days but %10 just funny number. These bots are only work in bull run anyways not worth to spend time for most of people its like PVP server between bots not really fits for regular people just by testing some i wasted around 2k$, lol.Btw AI part is just lie its just basic bot only reason that working because of bull run.Stay away if you cant code your own and deeply understand what you are doing.
