Thread: What podcasts do you listen to?

TheCoz - April 1, 2024, 1:17 pm

I did a few searches to see what podcast people listen to on here and the newest thread was from 2022. I work a job where I can listen to music/books/podcasts all day so I go through a lot of content and was wondering what everybody enjoyed listening to.

Here are some of mine.

Darknet diaries (cybercrime)

Joe Rogan (random interviews of interesting people)

Lex Fridman (random interviews of interesting people, mostly tech)

Andrew Huberman (science based health)

Hacked (cybercrime)

The Dirt Bag Diaries (backpacking/ outdoor stories)

Cybercrimeology (cybercrime)

Black Hills Info Sec (current events from an info sec perspective)

Meat Eater (hunting/conservation podcast)

Jamika - April 1, 2024, 1:20 pm

I usually listen to podcasts in arabic related to marketing and some soccer stuff

DashPHP - April 1, 2024, 1:21 pm

Andrew Tate's emergency meeting is what I watch!

DemonAsylum - April 1, 2024, 1:22 pm

Not too big on listening to podcasts these days honestly. Multiple times I've seen that X podcast exists or that X person/band/thing has a podcast that interests me on the surface, but I normally don't end up actually checking it out after. There was a time when I listened to them a bit though so maybe such a time will return.

Eran - April 1, 2024, 1:36 pm

Not listening to any podcasts on the regular but I'll watch some Tate from time to time.

Undead - April 1, 2024, 1:41 pm

Used to listen to Rogan when he was on YouTube. Now I just watch Value Entertainment sometimes. Can't stand Lex Fridman though, that guy is dry.

Toscan - April 1, 2024, 1:47 pm

Give John Rohn a listen. So much wisdom to gain from this man.

Interesting, is that due to Arabic being your first language? So it's just the most comfortable or easiest to digest content with?

Yeah that's how I've been for a while too. How about what podcasts or even just type of podcasts do you think you WOULD listen to? If you were into listening to them I mean obviously.

Euaggelistes - April 1, 2024, 3:57 pm

Cyberwire is one of the main ones

Critical Thinking Bug Bounty is another.

That's fair and makes sense obviously. Do you feel the reading and posting you do here (in English obviously), helps you with getting better?

I can only speak for myself, but I don't believe I've ever had a problem understanding what you're saying or registering it in the way that you're meaning to put it across. You're doing great my man ?

Time is my biggest problem. I try to play them in the background at work but it ends up hurting my work and I missed half the podcast XD. I would happily listen to podcasts especially about motorcycles, a great passion of mine

V?rt - April 1, 2024, 4:45 pm

I generally listen to the Morning Wire podcast in the morning. It's just a 15 minute news update podcast every morning. It's pretty helpful to keep up with the world and 15 minutes isn't that bad. I listen to the Tiny Meat Gang Podcast a good bit too. It's Cody Ko and Noel Miller, some old vine guys that started a podcast. That's a pretty funny one.

Lmao, I can relate to this. I have in the past tried to casually listen to a podcast while doing some work or even just simply a task that requires more of my attention than not and so I end up missing out on being able to actually register what all the podcast is covering. Not exactly the ideal scenario ? That's cool about being into motorcycles though. You own any?

That reminds me of those videos on YouTube (cant remember who by, maybe like VICE or something?) where they have previous criminals and shit talk about how that lifestyle was and such. I've quite enjoyed some of those.

In what context is this post?! This thread is about podcast lol

TheCoz - April 2, 2024, 3:54 pm

I forgot to add I listen to the Shawn Ryan show and Jocko williks podcasts as well

Toscan - April 2, 2024, 4:07 pm

I also recommend the JAXXON podcast. If you know UFC, Rampage Jackson is one of the hosts.

Funny dude and good conversations.

They are great, cant deny it. Something that you can either be completely focused on or doing something else while still listening to and registering however much from. Definitely plenty to be entertained by, learn from, etc when it comes to podcasts too. I gotta get back to listening to a few myself one of these days.

Absolutely. You find what you like whether it's something niche or more general like Joe Rogan and you can soak up so much information in an entertaining way. The downside is some can be so damn long sometimes, but you can always see the highlights from every podcast ever pretty much on the tube.

For sure, there is no doubt endless options out there in terms of topics for them and many that just cover general news or shit going on. Some can definitely drag on pretty long as well, but like you said if it's a popular podcast at least, you shouldn't have trouble finding some highlights for it.

I believe that time is a precious resource that should be spent on activities that truly resonate with one's passions and interests. Engaging directly with what I love offers a sense of fulfillment and personal growth that passive experiences like podcasts might not provide for me. It's not that I see podcasts as a waste of time, but more about prioritizing my own journey and creative endeavors. This approach might be unconventional, yet it allows me to live authentically and with intention.

I love listening to the podcast that Bobby Lee is on, I can't remember the name of it rn lol

RangoWorld - September 23, 2024, 1:56 pm
Honestly. Lex Fridman and Joe Rogan.

I do listen to Hubermna Lab from time to time. Other than that not much podcasts these days.

patmorriswwe - September 23, 2024, 5:42 pm
i used to listen to rogan faithfully. was hip to the jre before it exploded (circa 2010), but idk...that dude's changed. i realize people evolve, but he doesn't even seem like the same person i used to listen to. he went from progressive liberal to moving his entire family to texas lol.

i've replaced the joe rogan experience with the jim cornette experience.

i also listen to startalk (neil degrasse tyson). i also listen to "side projects" and "today i found out" which are both hosted by simon whistler.

mostly i listen to wrestling podcasts and science/history shit.

oh and morning kombat with luke thomas and brian campbell!

SwiftTrade - September 25, 2024, 1:50 pm
JRE without a doubt!

Alphamethylphenethylamine - September 25, 2024, 4:31 pm
I'm into a few podcasts;
Creep Cast (Hosted by Wendigoon & Meatecanyon, they go over creepypasta stories and internet analog horror.)

The WAN Show (Linus Tech Tips weekly podcast)

The Red Thread (Wendigoon, Jackson Clarke & Oompaville host it and they go over interesting conspiracy theories and just generally fascinating stories. Cults, cryptids, government conspiracy, you name it and they probably cover it. And they're all actually level headed, so it's not one of those crappy conspiracy theory podcasts.)

DF Direct Weekly (Pod by DigitalFoundry, they do video game performance and graphics analysis on their main vids, the pod is just about general talk of the week in the gaming sphere. Highly recommend!)

The Hamilton Morris Podcast - if you've ever watched those drug related videos on Vice with the tall, lanky guy who wears glasses and has a monotone voice, that's Hamilton. He's a chemist working in the psychedelic field these days, but he still puts out regular podcasts with some of the most impressive guests I've ever seen. Assuming you're into psychedelics and/or drugs in general, his content is top tier. He's interviewed the guy who sold LSD to Steve Jobs, a guy who did LSD with Charles Manson, he interviewed Carl Hart several times, Dennis McKenna, David Nichols - I could go on and on. I'm sure some people will recognise some of these names I've listed if they're familiar with the drug community.

I feel like I may be missing one, but regardless these are the main ones I listen to. I highly recommend all of them.

lil edit: just remembered right as I hit post - I used to listen to JRE until his braincells spontaneously ceased to exist around ~2020 when he started parroting complete misinformation about the COVID vaccines. There's a great clip of Bill Burr putting Joe in his place while Joe tries to pull nonsense out of his ass; <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=tSKVXI-WnrA>

Still not too big on podcasts atm. Figured I would have dived back into some more by now, but I guess I haven't had the interest enough. I imagine that would change if I actually gave a few a try again though.

I'm personally not a huge fan of podcasts. Whenever I try to listen to one, it just goes in one ear, out the other. I don't retain anything so I just give up
