If you value your eyesight, you'll choose to look away. ?

Do it, you ain't got the balls

diablospartan - April 6, 2024, 6:27 am

Well what eclipse ? From what i know it will not be one anytime soon ? Or i am missing something ?

Toscan - April 6, 2024, 6:45 am

Yeah I'm going to be using my binoculars too. ?

TooBurnt - April 6, 2024, 7:01 am

I'm on that yolo tip so I'll be going shade-less.

Yeah bought some special glasses ?

Charlie Sheen - April 6, 2024, 11:23 am

Eclipse won't be passing over where I'm at so unfortunately no.

You can do it if you want too. I used binoculars to start at it as a kid. I burned my eyes but was not at all blind.

All it does is stinks your eyes when you look at it. Just don't look directly at the light around the moon.

if you look directly it will burn your retina. I looked near it.

Report back if you do OP. :)

gwiz - April 6, 2024, 5:44 pm

There is glasses for this, with them you'll be fine as long as you're in an area where the eclipse really is.

I did this with the one in I think 2017 or 2018, it was an experience I'll never forget, it went really shadey for like 5 min and the birds were chirping like crazy, I honestly had a slight panic attack, the vibe of going from a full sunny day to late evening within minutes was a very trippy feeling, and I hope this one is the same way.

Absence - April 6, 2024, 6:00 pm

I bought a bunch of glasses and have given out many to family members and friends.

I feel like that I normally would not care, but as I have got older and as I age, I truly appreciate things like this more. This must be an effect of me getting more and more spiritual, so I can just enjoy a moment.

Recently got a half moon/sun piece of art, too.

With sungalasses, sure. lol not worth your eyesight without.

DemonAsylum - April 7, 2024, 3:35 pm

I think we should all look at it for as long as we physically can and without any eye protection. This will surely allow us to ascend to higher beings.
