What do you think of Bitcoin Babies NFT collection? Yay or nay

Toscan - April 14, 2024, 10:47 am

I like the idea, also just curious was this generated with OpenAI? They look good.

I generated 3 sets from Bing's image creator which uses DALLE-3

Quote:bitcoin baby, cartoon caricature, vivid, vibrant, distinct clear lines, high quality, vector art
Just replace bitcoin baby with whatever you want & you can expect similar styles :)

I wouldn't buy any NFT ever. Buy monero!

Eran - April 14, 2024, 11:22 am

Was never a fan of NFTs nor did I get into them. Cool initiative I guess.

V?rt - April 14, 2024, 7:24 pm

Nah I don't think I'd join on that one. I don't know if I really care for the art. Plus there's no like characteristics or rarities it seems.

Pretty cool that things like that can just be generated though.

Yeah, agreed that it's missing the attributes a normal NFT collection would have for rare characteristics.

I think with some fine tuning you could get enough of the same style to do that, but in this iteration obviously there aren't any. The only thing I can think of out of the set I shared would be like a rare "coin hybrid" which is when the coin becomes part of the body (head, etc) rather than a normal baby holding it. Could consider these BTC "afflictions" as rare attributes, but it's still not totally in line with how NFTs work.

But yes - super fast, I wrote 1 prompt then clicked the Submit button 3x to generate these, aka little to 0 effort.

LOL ngl, I would never buy this collection either :)
But I generated them & figured I'd get some community feedback haha

If I was buying NFT's, it wouldn't be those. The images are horrible imho. They kind of creep me out too.

Yeah, I went with the first images that came out of the AI generator. If it were a real collection I imagine we'd need thousands of variations and then hand-select the best. But... not sure if they'd be much better. Something about babies and crypto isn't hitting the same as cryptopunks

Omniscient - April 15, 2024, 2:29 pm

I like this one I made (w/GPT 4) better.

Nice, very regal

I went for cartoon style, but yeah I'm constantly impressed with these image generators.

Any thoughts of refreshing the HF default avatars?

The avatars are submitted by members. If you want to me a set then do it and submit them to me.

Oh very cool, didn't realize that.

Yeah I might take a crack at that, sounds good.

The names of the avatar gallery's are the member usernames who submitted them.

Nice, I didn't realize those were their usernames!

I'm not suggesting the following avatars for HF, but just to show an example of how AI can create "sprite sheets" of avatars, emojis, and icons, here are some samples from bing image creator:

This type of thing can be used to create NFTs as well I suppose. For these I didn't give AI any requirements, so it basically generated random themes.

BlackWidow1 - April 25, 2024, 7:48 am

we need to analyze the marketing team

R^ptor - April 25, 2024, 8:29 am

I don't buy NFTs unless they have a purpose such as play to earn. The only project I've invested in was NinjaFT and that died so personally I'd stay away

Yay or nay

they look a bit too generic , don't see the traits or rarity in it wouldn't buy this one yeah you are right and the rarity / traits piece is very important.

Going to close this thread based on that alone, I think in hindsight it's obvious this collection wouldn't make it.
