Is there any chance for Lelouch to appear in the new movie 'Code Geass: Dakkan no Rozé'?

Bastille - April 22, 2024, 9:21 am

Didn't even know about the new movie, that's funny how much references this anime has about France, "rozé" is for "rosé" which is a category of wine between red and white wines. There are also rosé champagnes, and even the name "Lelouch" is french.

Oui oui baguette ! ????

I don't remember the end of the anime, wasn't Lelouch dead ?

No, Lelouch is not dead is return, you should watch this movie "Code Geass: Fukkatsu no Lelouch" is the sequel of the anime iirc, it's an unwritten rule that most (if not all) anime movies are not canon.

The anime ending itself was an open ending (don't open spoiler if you haven't watched the anime or plan to watch it)

Spoiler (Click to View)

If I remember correctly.

Last scene was C.C. on a carriage talking to herself apparently but then people theorized that she isn't really talking to herself.

She is talking to Lelouch who decided to fake his death and leave everything.

By all means, enjoy the movies you want, but keep in mind that they are (Probably) not canon/related to the original story.

I say "Probably" because some movies are canon.

- Demon Slayer Movie
- Naruto - The Last
- Naruto - Boruto

Are example of movies that are canon (afaik).

I'm a big fan of the anime, and I really wish they would make a sequel to the last movie. But instead, they keep producing only side stories that are too boring and don't capture the essence of the main story. I really don't know what the producers are thinking.

Most side-stories are either:

- A) Actual side-stories manga chapters (rarely)
- B) Studios trying to fill the gap between chapters to make shows run longer.

I rarely enjoy side-stories myself, but it's what it's sadly.

Code Geass was great, but in my opinion, I think we should let great things die rather than extending them too long they become shitty.

A good example is Sword Art Online.
Great concept and start, but it went on for too long.
After finishing Season 1, I barely managed to push through to watch Season 2.

As i think, no, but i hope yes, i like his character actually

Portugals - April 23, 2024, 11:58 am

No, he will not take part

Sorry for digging this thread up, I didn't know if I should comment the thread about Code Geass or just create my own thread about the series itself but I only wanted to say that Code Geass was one of my favourite animes of all time! Thank you

Me too. It's my favorite anime, but only the original story where Lelouch is the main character. The other side stories in this anime are boring.
