I recently left my sys/network/security admin job in order to prepare to apply as a SOC Analyst Tier 2 so it's ok it was my choice :)

Besides in France we have "protections" in case we lose or leave our job, so even if I don't work I'm still paid every month, 70% of what I used to be paid, and even with 30% off I'm still way above the minimum wage so its good ! It's like holidays haha I'll take my time to go back to work, I'm not in a hurry

Off topic but my lady just got hired into a network marketing company on the big tech side.

Once she gets established want me to keep you as a reference and plug y'all in together if the company's needing your skill sets ? Which they seem right up the same ally of my girlfriend!

Glad to hear you're feeling good! Don't really have a favorite day of the week, but I suppose Sunday's are usually more of a winding down day for me than most others so if I had to choose one than potentially that? Friday/Saturday are sort of staples to go out and do things whether during the day or at night though so those are obviously great too.

Seems like a good enough reason as any to have a favorite day and especially since I know you're an adult, have a family, etc haha.
