Thread: Make Money Long Term!

Henry Chinaski - May 1, 2024, 12:54 am

Hello,

I'm writing with a heavy heart and a deep sense of urgency. I've found myself in a difficult situation, and I'm reaching out for guidance and support.

I've been struggling financially for quite some time now. Despite my best efforts, I've been unable to find stable employment that pays a livable wage. At age 30 its becoming more painful by the day. I've been working odd jobs and freelancing, but it's not enough to make ends meet. I'm barely getting by, and I'm worried about my future.

To make matters worse, I'm concerned about the impact that AI and automation will have on the job market. I've been trying to develop a skillset that will be in demand and less likely to be replaced by machines, but it's been a challenge. I'm worried that I'll be left behind in a world that's increasingly reliant on technology.

I'm hoping that someone out there can offer me some advice on what skill set I should learn in order to make a decent living. I'm determined to turn my situation around, but I could use some help. Thank you for taking the time to read my story. Any words of guidance would be greatly appreciated.

Well i understand your concern my friend

In my opinion i dont think you should depend your totaly income on what you earn online

Anyway the succes online comes after some time

I think its best to find a real job and in your free time to have also a side hustle like affiliate marketing for example

In this way you have 2 sources of income and lets say you get fired from your job you have some income from the side hustle ,also lets say you dont make money from the side hustle from whatever problem then you have the income from your job that allows you to pay for bills ,food etc

Regarding artificial intelgence i think you should master the process of selling as i think ai will not be able to replace it or at least not too soon and you cannot go wrong

I think you should learn affiliate marketing as its a huge and vast field and will work for many years to come

Hey! I appreciate you offering to help, but to be honest I do not want a date with karma. In my past I have experienced that taking shortcuts just makes you end up where you started. I want to do the right things, the right way!

Well what karma do you speak my man ? By promoting clickbank products you dont scam or trick people or something unethical

Its a legal business and very big in fact and it runs perfectly legal no gimick etc

Plus on youtube are guys who shows you methods to make money and you need to put some effort ,hard work to make it work

Its not a quick rich scheme

I dont understand why you mention about karma as you dont nothing wrong

What sort of skills have you got and what part of the world do you live in? -I might be able to connect you with some people, at least if you are looking for a "steady 9-5 job" with ok/good pay.
