Thread: ? Huge list of movies and series about hacking, computing, and cybercrime ?

Bastille - July 11, 2024, 9:42 pm

(and any movie or series that could be related to geek, nerdz or no life that you are)

I've seen many threads asking for movies about hacking so I decided to gather in this thread all those on my list, this thread will be updated according to releases, feel free to suggest more if any are missing. I've decided to no limit the list to hacking, but also themes around it such as Internet, Darkweb, IT in general.

A way to give some ideas to fill an evening or two.

For each I've seen I'll add a [Personal note], for those I really loved I will add the following emoji : ?

Thank you for all the interesting film and series recommendations about hacking, etc. I wonder which films or series you would recommend the most to dive deeper into the topic?

You're welcome buddy.

Well the answer depends on what you're looking for, besides I didn't watch all of them, but if you want some to start :

- Mr.robot (it's the only one realistic for me, and it's considered as the most realistic by the community)

- Who Am I can be sometimes not really realistic but the movie is good
- Hackers (1995), not realistic at all but the 90's vibe is good

I find hacking movies fascinating, especially those that address topics relevant to our world and reflect the impact of technology on society. I found Snowden particularly interesting because it portrays the true events of the NSA whistleblower who revealed secret information about government surveillance practices. The Matrix was also very breathtaking and captivating, as it actually reflects the truth, but there is no one like Snowden who could bring such revelations to light.

Of course, I will check out your recommendation. :)

For a serious one with some great twists and drama - Mr. Robot, the InfoSec's version of Breaking Bad.

For funny - Go binge all of Silicon Valley, I rewatch it almost yearly because it's so good.

I wanted to make another thread for documentaries because I'm afraid that this one could be too big or too messy

Regarding Buba I wasn't aware that it existed, I just watched the trailer but didn't see anything related to the Internet or cybercrime like HTSDOF, did you watch it ? Is there a link with those topics or it's more crime oriented (and not cybercrime) ?

And maybe a third thread for animes in the Anime section but don't know if a lot of anime exist about the Internet, cybercrime, and so on

- The Girl Who Kicked the Hornets' Nest (2009)
- The Girl with the Dragon Tattoo (2011) - American remake
- The Girl in the Spider's Web (2018)

Never watched them, I thought that the hacking part wasn't that relevant, but if it's worth it I'll add them to my watch list :)

Damn, the 00's vibe, I love it, I'll definitely watch it

It seems that season 1 is available on YT

By the way can you confirm me something ? I thought about making a thread for documentaries, and I'm not sure in which category this one should be as I didn't watch it yet

Lol Yeah lol most of them are not realistic, but I'm glad you found interesting ones, feel free for any feedback of movies / series you'll watch :)

It's not a documentary because it's a work of fiction. It's a webseries that came out when there were no platforms for such things or they didn't go mainstream back then.

V for Vendetta was actually decent but gets so much hate.
