Thread: steam ban associate with theft

larsonor - May 9, 2024, 2:11 am

Steam has somehow flag my device or IP and when i buy account they ban it.

Reason associate with other accounts theft
(the acc is just afk idling hours)

Do you know how can i protect and show as different "person" each account ?

The only link i had is same SDA (but different mobile number) and same ASF device (used it to farm them cards) .

This "PC Client (SteamKit2)" same for all account thats why they could link with previous bought account ?

I can pay for solution , they ban my accounts with no reason if you don't use proxies they will probably notice all your accounts are using the same IP would try proxies

the thing is 1 of the bought accounts is still not banned, and is the one that has the most activity lol the source could be where you bought the accounts? they might have caused the ban?

No , because from different sellers i received this ban associated by the account detected with other accounts that have received the same ban (bought accounts)

Otherwise it would say "Locked by Owner" and then somebody would be able to retrieve it. But these bans are permanent.

What are you buying an account for in the first place? Not knocking, just curious is all. I'm sure there are decent reasons for some.

Using them to cheat in csgo xD

Burger - May 12, 2024, 6:51 am

Proxy, Tunnels or VPN. Also maybe a HWID Spoofer? or use a RDP!

the problem is that you are cheating in CS, and a lot of players and cheaters will mass report you to get your account community banned if you don't own the og email do not change the password otherwise if you get mass reported within like a month or 2 of your password change you are in high risk of community ban.

this is just a simple common way of getting cheaters locked out of their accounts.

what if i create new account and get mass reported?

Also i had the OG email. the reason is "associated with others account theft" and instant permanlock without giving me the chance to provide anything you should be fine, though make sure to your delete ssfn. it logs which accounts you've logged in with in the past and be on a fresh residential IP.

steam does not hwid ban or anything silly

To be completely honest, I would rather you keep getting banned. Good luck.

Your opinion is useless. Good Luck.

They don't ban by hwid but they ban ip ? idk all residential proxies ive tested are high risk quality, also when i restart router the IP changes

Ahh I see. So you got banned on a previous account, steam took note of your HWID or actual IP in whatever way, and are now nuking whatever other accounts you play on?

yes

I'd look up steam disable prevention tools. Buying / Selling steam accounts they log stuff in steam.blob and also in registry.

That's why, they flagged for suspicious and you never clear them so they ping steam and bam flagged.

Steam doesn't do HWID banning, and IP addy isn't a good way either as they change and if a dorm/college etc. doesn't work as you catch innocents. They can tell where you live city/state based on your IP, but not your exact address.

Believe me, I'm on a steam Blacklist. I can't buy games under my own name. Goes back to me rage hacking in TF2 against valve admins back when you could stalk them. Do it long enough and they perm your name.

That's the more effective way.

The Last test i made I used my steam in Virtual Machine & Anti detection Browser , the only security hole maybe some times used my IP instead of VPN only.

Something strange has been happening to Steam lately, someone hacked into my account and made some strange transactions.

Horace - June 24, 2024, 10:30 am

You can use different IPs to log in to these accounts so that you will not be linked to other accounts.

Sorry to hear this. Hope you were able to get them reversed and in turn your money back. Stay safe.
