Thread: What was your biggest Crypto related mistake?

Digitly - May 13, 2024, 12:29 am

Let me tell you mine. Back in 2015-2016, I found a method that made me $$$ per day. I could easily buy at least 40-50 Bitcoins(Only if I knew).

So, what was the biggest mistake you made related to cryptocurrency?

Acorns - May 13, 2024, 3:53 am

I used to mine $ZEN and for some stupid reason i sold at 4-7$ a coin thinking it was just carry on the down trend and to pay off the miners i had bought (had hundreds of coins and was running the masternodes at same time for "passive income") few weeks later i saw ZEN at over $100 each...

If you had sold at $100, you would have retired by now?

I don't know, but PEPE is reaching all time highs after I sold my pepe holdings yester day. I fill like I am the wojak.

No worries though I will have enough saved up to put in crypto again working in mcdonalds next month.

Basically the same as everybody else to be honest. Not holding BTC for longer than I did and not caring about it. I used to play slots when BTC was like $3-5 each coin. Had about 150 BTC :)

I was in prison during this time, did Biden have a big effect on the alts?

I mean was there a change in the exchange?

Bought around £2000 worth of shiba inu when it first came out, sold it weeks later thinking it would never grow.

Accepted btc as payments years back when I had no idea about it. I didnt even need the money for something important I just spent it on dumb shit. Could have had a down payment for a house rn smh.

titi - May 13, 2024, 3:33 pm invested way too much money in NFT's and I stopped mining Ethereum in 2020

I feel like as time passes, governments are getting more and more stricter. But it's sad to see a technologically advanced country like USA. Which has been a forefront country in much of the technology that we use today. Take more and more regressive steps towards new technology like blockchain. Printing paper money is resource consuming. Federal reserve should adopt new technology and release dollar in it's government approved dollar coin or something.

Had 150 BTC in 2014-2015 when it was about $150-200, sold for cash...

Damn. 150 Bitcoin would be nice to have. You could be living in Dubai(one of my dream destinations)

My biggest mistake was investing in Illuvium.

<https://illuvium.io>

I invested in this crypto from the beginning and they are slowly rug pulling their members.

The founder of the Protocol is stealing money to pay for his life and wife.

They call it DAO but think about it... He has all the coins LOL.

Stay safe kids!

Not quite retired but i would be pretty close

DarkWebInsider - May 14, 2024, 5:59 am

Selling 250 BNB in December 2020 for $20 a piece right before it exploded to $700

Bought BTC at around 20k with the proceeds so it wasn't totally a loss.

Did something similar and sold about 5000 MATIC for 30 cents each right before it went parabolic and ran all the way to $3.

hotenik - May 15, 2024, 6:52 am

Buying the top.

So easy to belive the hype when every youtuber starts blasting about how some shitcoin will do 10x in a few weeks.

If we been in a bullrun for a few months, its probably not a smart idea to but this guy offed himself mid thread ??

my crypto mistake was having a $6000 account liquidated yeeears ago when I was first starting with crypto trading bots.

started with $1500, took my first $1500 back out at $3000 and just let it grow from there. I ended net neutral but yea a nice big 33% drop that liquidated all my profits. taught me some valuable lessons about leverage. I actually took a year off from trading after that and did only paper trading till I learned how to profit.

Back in the day my friends and I wanted a fake ID to get into clubs, we were probably 14-15.

Looking back at how much we spent if we saved it would have been ridiculous. Didn't even get them either.
