Hello,

Do not ask to target websites, if you need to practice take a look at the following :

Attempting to hack a live website isn't legal and could land you in some deep waters if not careful.

You can download and install software such as wordpress or any other script that has an already discovered CVE onto your local machine and practice that way, always a good practise method.

Also, i would look into Google Dorks, this is a good way to find a specific file/script/page on websites.

Please be careful, you dont want to get caught. Research how to protect yourself such as using a VPN.
