

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: What sites can really teach you real-world knowledge if I start learning hacking?

trimac1jx2 - May 26, 2024, 10:43 pm

I've been through a lot of sites like HTB or Coursera, Codecademy,... But I really wonder in the real-world, do they actually use this or not ? If you guys know any sites that can help me to start learning hacking, like when you get a job you really use these knowledge, please suggest me some.

Bastille - May 26, 2024, 10:49 pm

Quote:If you guys know any sites that can help me to start learning hacking, like when you get a job you really use these knowledge

It depends on the job you're talking about.

If you plan to work as a blueteamer there are better websites such as letsdefend.io/

If you plan to work as a redteamer (pentesting) tryhackme and hackthebox are really good.

What you learn on these sites can be applied in the real world of course, there would be no meaning if not.

DramaKing - May 27, 2024, 8:38 am

(May 26, 2024 10:43 PM)trimac1jx2 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I've been through a lot of sites like HTB or Coursera, Codecademy,... But I really wonder in the real-world, do they actually use this or not ? If you guys know any sites that can help me to start learning hacking, like when you get a job you really use these knowledge, please suggest me some.

Do people really use the Ping of Death? No. LFI, IDOR, information disclosure, yes.