For me it's definitely Netherlands, so I can rave more. What about you?

Probably Texas or California, and stayed out there.

Probably somewhere between Europe and Japan. Both are dope.

I am so lucky to have grown up, that I would not wish for it to be anywhere else.

Literally, I was planted in the right country from the beginning, but not the right environment. Because of the country, I could change and shape my environment to what it needed to be, for me to succeed.

SEA, so I have access to all the gundooms

Never actually thought about this before.. surely growing up somewhere would mean my whole life is different. My personality, looks slightly, I could be hooked on drugs and on the streets.

My life is decent right now. Just poor but that's bearable.

I wish I had grown up in Northern Europe. I'm an introvert, so the culture there works well for me.
