Supermarco - May 29, 2024, 12:44 pm

My life is a tragedy... nobody loves me, no friends, no girls want to do sex with me and everyone hates me, i am feeling so alone, i really wish a real friend, or a new world where the hackers live together... everyone betrayed me, i am like in a zoo... and i cry, and nobody cares if i cry but they are happy when i do, they want me to be handicapped, my family is stopping to love me... i am real sad, i need real friends. :'(

Have you considered seeing if how you feel may be the symptoms of some emotional/psychological problem? No shame in asking for help.

Why is it that your family is stopping to love you? Did you do anything? There's always a reason as to why.

I am in the same boat. However, for me I accept being alone. I look at the positives and just chime on.

The only advice I can give is that no one likes a person that complains and shows weakness. If you did just this like what you did just now in a post but did it in real life. People would look at you as a weirdo and leave. You won't find friends or have anyone interested in you.

Keep such things to yourself. It's ok to talk like that on here but in person don't be this open. All you have to do is go to a mall and just practice talking to people.

If they think you're a weirdo... it's fine.. let them go and walk away. However, always think about your approach. Try and be friendly and happy when approaching people and don't talk negative. Even though you might be sad but don't tell them and try to not make it obvious.

If people don't want to be your friend, then fck 'em.. that's their lost. You can't worry about whether people like you or not, as that is not something you can control, and there will always be miserable people out there that aren't going to like you for one reason or another... don't dwell on it, move on and concentrate on the things you can control.

It will get greater, later.. that's not just a saying, it's a fact.

But, do you love yourself? If not, then how can expect others to love you?

Trump - May 29, 2024, 5:28 pm

Welcome to the club buddy. You're just living what a lot of people are living. Life is hard but you gotta keep your head up.

Toscan - May 29, 2024, 5:29 pm

I love you <3. Message me if you need someone to vent to.

Blockonome - May 29, 2024, 5:39 pm

I do not even understand how you can expect someone to love you in the first place. That stuff is earned, not given left right and center.

Supermarco - May 29, 2024, 6:42 pm

I am feeling like the film Donnie Darko

Biggs - May 29, 2024, 11:31 pm

Not sure if trolling or serious. If you want real friends why not meet new people in real life? Is isn't that hard.

I-I - May 29, 2024, 11:47 pm

Bruh... I had this customer today going off and demanding all this shit from me to do that wasn't in our contract and I've already gone above and beyond for her. Now what she was asking for wasn't even a big deal and normally I would have just done it for any other customer.

Want to know why I didn't? Because she's a fucking pain in the ass to deal with. No less than 3 calls a day from her every day since I started the job. This lady is always trying to chat me and my workers up (even when I just ignore her and continue my work she keeps yapping), talking about how this person or the other has fucked her over, her mover did a bad job, her boyfriend fucked her over, her neighbor is a bitch, it's always someone else. This morning she calls me yelling at me asking where I am (jobs already done btw) and I tell her she needs to calm down, I'm at my office and I'm about to head to her to pickup my machine, do a final cleanup, and give her the invoice. When I get there she ask me to take some concrete trash away that she had stored on the side of her house (I've already done a ton of extra shit for her by this point) and I tell her no. She goes off, now all of a sudden there's all these issues with the work I did and she's saying she's not gonna pay. I tell her "That's fine, you'll get a notice to owner by Friday and then I'm going to put a lean on your house and I wont even bother with court" and I walk away. She's still screaming at me while I'm halfway to my truck so I flip her off.

Why tell you all this? Because this lady has been complaining to me about how everyone fucks her over in her life but she's the common denominator, she's crazier than a squirrel on cocaine. If you're actually "lonely" then maybe try working on yourself? Never had sex? Okay well are you healthy and fit? Do you eat right, go to the gym, care about your appearance both physically and socially? Learn how to have an engaging conversation with others, work on yourself. If you've tried to put yourself out there and didn't see positive results then maybe it's because of you?

The biggest problem I see with people like this is selfishness. Selfish people don't actually care about others, they just care what others can do for them. A girl isn't an object for you to get off on and a friend isn't just someone you get things from when you want them. You have to bring something to the table to eat at it.
