Thread: unamSanctam silent crypto miner not working with ravencoin

cknown35426 - May 29, 2024, 5:40 pm

I've used the miner with monero and it works perfectly fine, been executing it on a vm and it's not showing up, I'm using 2miners pool but am I missing something, is there a certain way i need to put the address or the password ?

This is a tough one because they've used "unam sanctam" as the name which is related to some religious figures & topics. This makes it hard to Google for. The other problem is their github is disabled due to TOS and there isn't another repo that I could find.

With such little support online, you should consider using a different miner for your personal mining needs.

Was thinking of using another but is there any free ones if not, what are some good paid ones, thanks

He is trying to reestablish the GitHub page as open-source malware is allowed per TOS. It was last updated 12/7/2023.

You can find a download link on his Github inside of the Issues tab in UnamWebPanel. It's titled "SilentCryptoMiner This repository has been disabled !!! #361" - scroll down and he posted a gofile link.

You can also find the wiki on archive - sorry can't post links

I believe the reason I can't use it on ravencoin is because the xmrig is outdated, I've tried the best I could to update it but seems impossible, there's a lot of money to be made off ravencoin, way more than what I'm getting right now from xmr. If someone could help me out ill really appreciate it.

It's working fine with ravencoin. Check the Github issue - he posted two updates yesterday.
