Do y'all like them or no? I personally love going to them and offering them comically low prices. It works more often than not.

That's called low balling, sometimes the seller don't know the value of what they are selling so I try to be fair, if you are sure to make 10x or 20x reselling

DarkTheater - June 8, 2024, 10:02 am

Buying things from garage sale is good when you know the right value of the product.

Just post some on Ebay and flip them for 10x 20x.

I heared its held with low prices in some countries, liked the idea but we dont have it here

Deany - June 8, 2024, 10:08 am

Sometimes can find good stuff for flip

Chung - June 8, 2024, 10:17 am

I use to back when I was younger. Come home with cheap ass golf clubs and other random shit. Shame I never found any rates that then could be sold for millions. Forever broke man.

Pr0m3th3us - June 8, 2024, 10:19 am

They used to be better before the advent of Ebay, nowadays anyone can look up an item that they have and know its worth. Its hard to find someone selling stuff for a couple dollars that is actually worth 300 or what not.

Garage sales are the absolute best. Lowballing is the best part about garage sales and marketplace ?

die_dunkelheit - June 8, 2024, 2:45 pm

I love garage sales. They're much cheaper than houses.

I used to, growing up my grandma loved to spend the weekends at flea markets and garage/yard sales. There's some good finds. In my area, they have really died down now. People don't host them as often anymore.

Garage sales are great for finding unique items and sometimes even rare collectibles. I've snagged some vintage electronics and retro games for a fraction of their market value. It's like a treasure hunt, you never know what you'll find! Also, building relationships with regular sellers can sometimes lead to even better deals.

Lately I been scouring them for old metal gas cans because those bitches are crazy expensive right now

I love garage sales. You can find some gems out there.

YeahDude13 - June 8, 2024, 9:07 pm

My wife found a set of golf clubs for only $60. Talked them down from $75. Now it's time for her to come play with me finally.

Wait really? That's crazy. Happens often here in Canada as well. People sell their household stuff that they no longer want for cheap

Tsar - June 8, 2024, 9:39 pm

I'm not sure, I have never sold or purchased a garage

There is in europe as well in France there is les brocantes

Quote:A brocante is a type of flea market or garage sale where individuals sell second-hand items, often in a public place such as a parking lot, field, or street. Brocantes are usually organized by associations, community groups, or individuals who gather to sell their unwanted or used items, often at discounted prices.

But you have to arrive early to snag the best deals.
