Thread: Where have you travelled last couple of years?

Maskin - June 16, 2024, 7:16 pm

I've visited Cyprus twice—in Ayia Napa and Fig Tree Bay—and Greece (Zakynthos) once in the past two years. Last year, I also went to Canada and did a road trip from Toronto all the way to Halifax.

Where have you been?

Traveled from my home to my job, then back again. Also went to the store several times.

I'm also broke but sometimes I manage to find really cheap flights and hotels.

Recently paid $330 for flight + return flight and airport transfer, with 7 nights in a 3-star hotel including breakfast in Ayia Napa 300 meters from the beach.

Been in a few countries. Croatia (Zagreb), Sweden (Stockholm), Portugal (Lisbon) and Netherlands (Utrecht). I had the chance to go in Stockholm both during summer and winter. Of course, summer is way better with having light at 11 pm, but winter also had it's beauties. Took some great pics! Mostly for work but used it as holiday trip.

I wish I could travel but right now my financial situation does not allow for me to travel anywhere currently. I hope that this changes in the future as I would really love to see Latin America or go to Europe and do some sight seeing.

Those of you guys who can travel from outside the country are all lucky since you get to experience out of the blue experience but for someone like me, I mostly stay indoors and have almost never left my city the past few years. I don't know honestly, I just don't feel like mingling around with my colleagues, my friends and my family to farther places as I feel much safer and comfortable here.

This year, me and my partner went to Paris twice. She loves it there and i can understand why. Hoping to go to Amsterdam this year and back to Hong Kong.
