

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Best AI Bot Trading Platforms

Omniscient - July 1, 2024, 2:32 pm

I'd like to start listing off some of the best AI Bot Trading Platforms. Try and compile them as a list potentially make this a sticky.

Reply with a link and I'll start editing this first post. Please no crappy AI bots. I want legit companies only, likely will by KYC.

skins2come - July 2, 2024, 9:18 am

The best KI tools I found so far are

- Binance
- Cryptohopper

Both pretty well known, both require KYC.

SUI-3183372 - July 2, 2024, 10:14 am

<https://www.cryptohopper.com/features/algorithm-intelligence>
<https://3commas.io/>
<https://www.kryll.io/>
<https://www.haasonline.com/>

No experience with any of the above.

Omniscient - July 2, 2024, 11:45 am

Will be spending a little time with cryptohopper and see how it is.

Anyone else with suggestions?

Thanks.

Vitaly - July 2, 2024, 12:56 pm

if i remember correctly, 3commas was leaking API keys to CEX accounts once, and for months said it had nothing to do with them and blamed the victims, and it came out... they were leaking API keys

so just exercise caution with them

SUI-3183372 - July 2, 2024, 1:10 pm

(Jul 2, 2024 12:56 PM)Vitaly Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) if i remember correctly, 3commas was leaking API keys to CEX accounts once, and for months said it had nothing to do with them and blamed the victims, and it came out... they were leaking API keys

so just exercise caution with them

Vouch, 3commas acted like buffoons there.

Neal Caffrey - July 2, 2024, 8:58 pm

(Jul 2, 2024 12:56 PM)Vitaly Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) if i remember correctly, 3commas was leaking API keys to

CEX accounts once, and for months said it had nothing to do with them and blamed the victims, and it came out... they were leaking API keys

so just exercise caution with them

nah shut the fuck up, how can a closed-source managed service ever have incompetent security protocols?