Elysium is an OSRS-based private server that prioritizes economic aspects while still catering to players who enjoy custom PvP content. Though PvP is a significant focus, those who prefer skilling and PvM are essential to the thriving economy. As you may know, PK'ers will need top-tier gear to excel in the wilderness, and much of this equipment is obtained through PvM, special events, and other engaging activities.

If you'd like to check out the site let me know, just to keep it within terms.

Is this a brand new server? Is it yours? What's the player count looking like?

Oh shit, well congrats! 10 people beta testing actually seems solid given the circumstances as well. I appreciate the info and do you have an ETA or window of time goal so to speak for official / full release?

No problem! Happy to show support! I know some people were trying to get kind of an official HF RSPS going, but idk if it's actually gonna happen. If not, maybe some could flock to yours instead.

Very nice project. Gives similar to CrisisX vibes. Which was by far my all time favorite RSPS.

Did you used to play on some RSPS or something? Or maybe you just mean playing RS in general.

I used to own my own RuneScape private server. Pretty much over a decade ago by now! Jahah Honestly me and my friend just created it out of passion to practice our programming skills more, we managed to get a pretty active community, peaking at 100 active players.

Was printing really good money for my age man. But things got very complex for my inexperienced self and we ended up closing down.

I have some old pics I might share with ya! :)

Ooo I see and that's lit. I feel like OSRS in some way or another made a lot of us on HF a fair bit of money and when we were just teenagers, myself included ? Good times man. You should find and share the pics as well!
