Ayo here to speak my mind a bit I'm new here & this will be my first post. I have been coding for 2-3 years now I use to be sub'd to tryhackme & hackthebox until I couldn't sub anymore. I'm working on a couple projects right now 2 being websites. I've been looking into breaking into the tech space I've been trying to put all extra time towards learning more about networks, writing more code, doing more projects (when I'm not working on mains). I want to grow in this space & within my abilities I'm barley scratching the surface of how great I can be. Having no stable income right now has me a bit down but I've been down before so I know it doesn't last long. Looking to grow my social network, learn new knowledge, engage in new topics & engage with others, be taught, & also be able to teach. I want to get my certs (Security+, Network+, OPSEC) any extra help on which books(although can be outdated)/sources to educate myself upon would help tremendously. Thanks for reading I appreciate it much.

Hey man, welcome to HF

Nice intro, I hope you'll get back on your feet, it won't be in issue for a long time if you work in the IT realm. If you're interested in cybersecurity we have a White Hat section.

I've made a guide about cybersecurity and there is a section about certifications, you may find useful information feel free to check it :
