Does anyone around this bih like true crime? What cases interest you the most? Anything you can't get past?

Pentatonix - July 28, 2024, 7:59 pm

You do know there's an entire section dedicated to Moves, TV Shows and more. It's not necessary to dumb EVERY fucking thread in the lounge.

But yes, I do like TruCrime.

Not the show or whatever. I'm talking like actual crime cases. Keneeka Jenkins? Gabby Petito? Missing people?

She wrote a book about it. She definitely did it.

I like police cams vids but have to skip through the bullshit to see the criminals reactions. Murder interrogations are interesting.

I feel like this is normal for men, but when a girl is into this shit it's a red flag lol

I don't care to much for the modern day true crime. So many cameras everywhere nowadays a lot of crimes are solved quite quickly.

I have a lot of books on serial killers, sexual sadist's, and rapists. The penultimate era of these people is long gone, it was in the 70's and 80's, but there are some out there still. I guess the most recent successful one was Israel Keyes.

Rex Heuermann is the latest serial killer to be caught in the USA or one of the latest.

I am kind of fascinated by school shooters and the Chris Watts case but the Chris Watts case may be a Psyops.

There's far more women into it than men. It's a big thing with a lot of women. No reason to see it as a red flag. There's a theory that they watch to try and protect themselves, but I don't really buy it. I think a lot of women are more into psychology than men, so they watch for the psychology of it all. Others watch for the "try to solve it," side which is more normal for men, or some men watch because of the violence.

There's a few cases that have stuck with me, but mostly because they're relatively local and one of the cases the victim looks eerily like a cousin of mine. I do like to listen to some stories when I'm cooking, but it's a bit depressing after a while so I switch it up with comedy to keep it light.
