Buy a cheap PC and install Nice Hash on it, leave it to run on someone else's electricity bill (With permission of course) and you are good to go.

Do they have a mobile app tho?

Thanks for the reminder about Nice Hash, I have an old account there, lets see if there's any balance on it :D

I think that you should something else other than a smartphone as one singular phone for crypto - mining would be inefficient and power draining, instead i would greatly recommend what the person on top said "Buy a cheap computer install NiceHash on it and run on someone else's electricity". As phone are not that powerful (even though the have gotten more powerful over the years) than normal general computers.

A smartphone is not a mining device. Good way to ruin it imho.

Any chain that leaves their mining difficulty low enough that cell phones are suitable for mining is either a scam or is massively susceptible to attack by a well funded attacker.
