Its a online education platfrom for the preparation of College enterance exams , I got rejected by just 1 mark from Toppers batch of this year .Thats why I want to get the access and silently study in that batch . so that I could get a good college out of the junk in India . there so scamming colleges here .

I have something to say about that. First the site needs to be vulnerable. Second schools are like most businesses and they insert their ID into the computer before they can sign in so good luck with that.

Could you send the URL here or in a convo? I want to see if the database is exposed to the Internet (bad). If so, your options will be SQL injection (quite easily prevented), rooting the server / webshell (generally requires a login and could require a long time to crack if ever), and logging into the database (see #2). The fact that the website still exists probably means that it has been secured against many cyberattacks already.

I would very strongly suggest you not pursue this or take action attempting it.. Education platforms exist for a reason and have marks/scores for a reason. Not only will you be breaking a ton of laws doing this, and you will be caught.. you could cause some extreme damage to the system as well and mess up other students achievements..

Not only that, if you do it and you are not caught straight away and "get away with it", there will come a time where you reference this platform and the score you got for future endeavours such as getting into a college, all the work you would have done will come to nothing because they will see you falsified your scores..

Dont do it..

Good choice. You dont have long to wait - ive been studying law for 4 years now but im glad i started when i did rather thanmaking excuses to put it off. If you want to do something, start as soon as you can.
