I play Escape From Tarkov for the PvP there just isn't anything like it yet unfortunately, it's so toxic.

I always play League of Legends ARAM or Hyper roll TFT. Right now a bunch of friends and I are playing Once Human and we're having a really good time.

I have been playing a little bit of once human as well, I wasn't optimistic at first but I ended up liking it XD.

Battlefield 4, I wish it was 3 too, but my cloud streaming provider doesn't go back that far.

I have the most hours on Battlefield 4, I've been playing since it came out and I was like 9 or so? Not even? But the game and I are literally just... one. I feel comfortable playing that game. It's clunky, but I'm old school.

I also play 7 Days To Die, a lot more recently since 1.0 came out. I go through phases with all my games, where I'll play/grind for a while, then won't touch them for a while.

But then the experience I don't even think I need to justify. RED DEAD REDEMPTION 2! No justification needed. Not playing the POS online either.

WatchDogs 2 because of the online invasions. Sometimes.

That's what I've been up to in the last week.

Oh, and Fortnite for my Rhythm guitarist, and my girlfriend. I wouldn't play it again otherwise. I went through that phase way long ago. Like 5 years ago.

I have been mostly playing Drug Dealer Sim 2 and American Truck Sim. But I also frequent Call of Duty. I don't care about all the hate it gets I enjoy MW3. Mw2 I didn't like though. I also barely played Cold War or Vanguard. Valorant is another game I do love.

I play league of legends mostly, but I legit hate playing it. Recently tried Once Human, it's kinda fun so far.

Recently I bought a game I used to play when I was younger : Command and Conquer

I play this game because it doesn't take too much time, I also play Rocket League for the same reason, and I was also on Elden Ring (the DLC) but I'm stuck, one of the bosses is too hard and I need to try-hard, learn the patterns, and so on, and I do not have enough motivation right now

WoW. Reason I keep playing it? It got me into technology and reverse engineering, which subsequently brought me to this forum where I can gain more knowledge and connections.
