Thread: Using Kali's NetHunter to replace MagicOS on Huawei Honors?

Title pretty much says it all. I bought this Huawei Honor phone a few months ago that's got an Android-lookalike OS that's not Android but instead a huge bunch of Chinese spyware, bloatware and forced-AI features which really just end up bothering me after a while. Am I asking for something REALLY far out over here, or is it a more or less straightforward & doable process that can actually make Kali's NetHunter work on such a phone? Or, if NetHunter's a bad replacement, please do tell me a better solution. Heck, as long as it doesn't break the phone noticeably and still can run functionally instead of having to grief myself with MagicOS any further as I just confidently wipe it, knowing that I won't have to reinstate it again because of the alt-OS ultimately failing on me after I've convinced myself that this is indeed, doable...? :) Thanks for any advice and input, if I'm asking for the impossible just tell me straight up and I'll go waste my life away with something a bit more meaningful. But if it can be done like I need it to be, then I really want to know the proper way of how, so any and all help will be appreciated.
