Thread: Do You Organize Your Day?

Blockonome - August 24, 2024, 6:47 am

Every morning I wake up, for the past 3 months, I have been writing a list in my notebook "Quest's of the day"

One of them as an example is "Check in to HF".

This allows me to visualize the stuff I need to get done, as I used to be rather lazy.

Do you have such a list or do you do something different?

I do. I use a variety of programs to measure my productivity. Windows 11's "Microsoft To Do" is a decent little checklist you can create and open every day. Microsofts focus session feature is also helpful in tracking time as a lot of my work is contracted and I have to measure my time and report it myself. It also lets you set goals and has a little green chart as you get closer to reaching your daily goal and I'm a number go up guy so that pleases me.

Obsidian I use a lot, but more for research, note taking, some journaling.

Outside of the computer I of course have my daily habits too, shower, breakfast, brush teeth, blah blah.

Sadly, this habit got absolutely obliterated with the start of the summer. Looking to get things into place again.

In chronological order. Kind of hard to do it any other way.

I actually don't, and it is not good, I thrive in chaos

I have tried it many time and failed, because I don't stick to the plan, at work it is a different story, luckily I have other people on my team that manages deadlines for projects or it would be a disaster lol.

Absolutely not. I'm terrible at making plans and/or figuring out what to do. I just let everything happen naturally. If I feel like going grocery shopping, I'll head on over. It's only 2 minutes away from my house.

And would you say that you are actively progressing forward in your life?

I have a similar ritual but instead of preparing the do list in the morning, I do it at night before sleeping. This helps me calm my mind and sleep as well. Most of my worries is that I forget the task required to be done and this makes me anxious.

diablospartan - August 25, 2024, 9:59 pm

Well unfortunately i dont plan my day by scheduling my most important tasks etc but i think i make a big mistake as many succesful people advice to plan your day ahead

I am happy to hear this man, this is why I ask people on HF such questions like this, as I believe there are a variety of ways to progress in life, depending on who you are.
