

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: [Rebel Moon - Director Cut \[Both Movies\]](#)

banonkiel - August 26, 2024, 4:04 am

Had sometime lately so I decided to pick something.

For those who don't know, I personally believe Zack Snyder might be one of the most talented directors in the superhero genre.

Not just because of his version of Justice League (which was superior to the initial release imo)

Because of Watchmen (2009) movie, I believe that movie was WAAAY ahead of it's time. People are praising The Boys TV-Series now, but this guy saw it coming over a decade ago and made a dystopian superhero movie.

Anyway, I saw people excited about Rebel Moon, then said it was shit. then director cut released and people said it plugs a lot of plotholes original movies had, no idea what that was about as I haven't seen original ones.

I agree with anyone hating on this because it had too many slow-motion scenes. It's an interesting universe, the one of Rebel Moon, I understand Zack Snyder probably had big ambitions for it but I don't see this as "modern day star-wars" in anyway.

I think the world building is so frustrating and characters introduction was incredibly slow.

Not horrible, not great, somewhere in between and was fun to watch so ye..
No idea if there's a sequel but will probably watch it, hopefully will have less slow-motion scenes.